SUBMARINE U-53 OF GERMAN NAVY PUTS IN AT NEWPORT, R. I., FOR 3 HOURS AND AGAIN GOES TO SEA

Captain of Vessel Says He Only Came to Mail a Letter to Ambassador Bernstorff.

MADE VOYAGE IN 17 DAYS

Started From Wilhelmshaven and Had Provisions Aboard for a Three Months' Cruise.

WAS HUNTING FOR BREMEN?

German Captain Inquires About the Under-Water Liner.

Newport, R. I., October 7. — Seventeen days from Wilhemshaven, the imperial German submarine U-53 dropped anchor in Newport harbor today. Almost before the officers of the American fleet of warships, through which the stranger had nosed her way, had recovered from their astonishment, the under-sea fighter had delivered a message for the German ambassador, and, weighing anchor, turned toward Brenton Reef lightship, and disappeared between the waves just outside the three-mile limit.

She flew the black and white colors of the German navy, a gun was mounted on the forward deck and another aft, while eight torpedoes were plainly visible under the forward deck.

Had Letter for Bernstorff.

Lieut.-Capt. Hans Rose, commanding the U-53, said that he had called at Newport simply to mail a letter to Count von Bernstorff. He required neither provisions nor fuel and would be on his way, he said, long before the 24 hours during which a belligerent ship may remain within a neutral harbor had expired.

The submarine was in American waters a little more than three hours, assuming that she continued to sea after submerging. Within that time the German commander paid official visits to Rear Admiral Knight, commander of the second naval district; and Rear Admiral Gleaves, commander of the destroyer force of the Atlantic fleet, who was on board the flagship, the scout cruiser Birmingham. Both American officers returned the brief call promptly.

Allied Ships Warned.

While these formalities were being exchanged wireless messages were carrying to the ships of the British and French patrol fleet off the coast warnings that a hostile submarine had slipped through their cordon and might be expected in the open sea soon.

At the forts and the naval station the feat of Capt. Hans Rose was the one subject of conversation tonight and there was much speculation as to his mission and whether it was confined to the postage of a letter to the German embassy.

Inquires About Bremen.

There were rumors, without apparent basis, that the German merchant submarine Bremen, long over due, might be expected in the wake of the warship. Some naval officers expressed the opinion that the fighter had escorted the Bremen across the ocean and others that she was searching for the merchant ship. The first question asked by Captain Rose when a motor boat came along side was:

"Have you heard from the Bremen?"

When he was told that there was no news of the missing craft his face became grave but he made no comment. To the naval men generally the most interesting fact disclosed by Captain Rose was that he had been at sea 17 days and still had provisions for three months, abundant fuel and needed no repairs. Not so much as a bottle of water was taken aboard the ship which was spick and span.

The U-53 was first sighted from land at 1:45 o'clock this afternoon as she was entering the inner harbor escorted by the United States submarine D-2, which was returning from maneuvers. She sent a wireless message to Admiral Knight, who notified the Navy Department at Washington. The American submarine preceded the visitor in the harbor.

The first report had it that it was the Bremen. A newspaper man climbed to the tower of the United States engineers office and with the aid of glasses made out two guns on the submarine.

Newspaper Man Goes Aboard.

A few minutes later he was in a motor boat making for the craft and was taken aboard. The U-53 had made her way through the fleet of 37 United States warships, including destroyers and submarines, to an anchorage. Captain Rose told the correspondent that he had come in to mail a letter to Count von Bernstorff and asked for the newspaper man's credentials.

The latter exhibited an Associated Press badge and was entrusted with the correspondence for the ambassador. "Please forward this letter to Count Bernstorff," said the captain, "and

AFTER SENSATIONAL RALLY BY BROOKLYN, RED SOX WON FIRST OF WORLD'S SERIES

Ernest Shore Had the Superbas at His Mercy for Eight Full Innings, When He Was Knocked Out of the Box—The Final Score Was 6 to 5—More Than 36,000 Witnessed the Game, for Which They Paid $76,489.50.

Boston, Oct. 7.—The Boston American League club triumphed over the Brooklyn Nationals here this afternoon 6 to 5, in the first game of the 1916 world's series, but marred their victory by skidding badly in the ninth inning. For full eight innings the 30-odd thousand spectators watched the junior league champions romp through their National League rivals to a lead of 6 to 1. Then suddenly the Carrigan machine began to slip and the fighting Dodgers awoke to new life, driving Ernest Shore from the box, amassing four runs and having the bases crowded when Shortstop Scott ended the game by throwing Jake Daubert out on a very close play at first.

Brooklyn's Rally the Feature.

This surprising rally of the team from Greater New York was the feature of an otherwise ordinary ball game. Before the threatening rush of the Superbas developed in their final turn at bat, the contest appeared to indicate that the Boston players would swing through to conquest and the startling break in the steady work of the local club furnished the thrill needed to fix the memory of the struggle in the minds of the fans.

When Daubert, the first Brooklyn batsman, stepped to the plate in the opening half of the ninth inning, the spectators were beginning to leave Braves' Field, but they halted in their tracks as Shore passed the Superbas' captain and Stengel sent him to second with a single. A lone Brooklyn rooter began to beat upon a tin pan, and here and there were cries of encouragement for the National League champions, but the cheers died away as Wheat forced Daubert at third.

Shore Lost Control.

Shore, however, could not control the ball and hit Cutshaw. Mowrey arose to the occasion with a bounder which Janvrin could not handle and Stengel and Wheat scored while the Boston fans began to move uneasily in their seats. Their fears grew when Olson beat out an infield hit and they were scarcely relieved when Chief Meyers fouled out.

Merkle, batting for Pfeffer, outwaited Shore and walked, forcing in Cutshaw with the third run of the inning.

There was not a sound from the thousands when Carrigan ordered Shore from the box and substituted Mays. Myers, Brooklyn's lead-off batter, scratched an infield hit, scoring Mowrey and the Nationals were within a run of tying the score with the bases still loaded. Daubert came to the plate for the second time in the inning and every one of the thousands of spectators held his breath as the Brooklyn captain hit an ugly bounder to Scott.

Sensational Ending.

The shortstop speared the ball as it leaped from the turf and without pausing even to sight whipped it to Hoblitzall. Daubert, sliding into the bag head first, appeared to arrive with the flashing ball, but there was a great cheer when Umpire O'Day, who fairly overhung the base, signalled the third out and the ending of the game.

It was a climax that showed the resources and strength of the Red Sox when under pressure. But it was not the only exhibition of a similar nature. Right Fielder Harry Hooper uncovered the star individual play of the day in the fourth inning when he made a great running catch off Cutshaw's twisting fly and nipped Wheat trying to score from third. Hooper had to spring well over to the foul line just back of first base before he could get his hands on the ball. The effort caused him to slip to the earth in a fitting position, but he was up like a flash and while rising hurled the ball straight as a bullet to Cady. The latter slammed it on Wheat's ankle as he reached for the plate with his foot at the end of a perfect hook slide.

Over 36,000 Saw Game.

This thrilling catch and throw and the ninth inning rally of the vanquished Brooklyn team were the outstanding features of the first game of the series which attracted a gathering of baseball followers that numbered 26,117 and paid into the coffers of the world's series fund $76,489.50. Neither the attendance nor the receipts equalled the record day of a year ago when 42,500 spectators witnessed virtually the same team defeat the Philadelphias 2 to 1 in the third game of that series, but tonight the players are richer by $41,304.33, while the clubs each have $13,768.11 and the National Commission $7,648.95 to add to their several bank accounts.

There was little evidence of this slight falling off in attendance, however, for the setting for the game was up to the standing of past world's series. The day was clear with just a touch of autumn in the air and a breeze which came out of the northeast without enough force to interfere with the fielding of long, high hit balls. The sun, however, bothered the outfielders badly at times and several hits were lost that otherwise would have gone as sure outs.

A Picturesque Scene.

Viewed from the upper tiers of the huge stands in the park presented a most picturesque scene, when Myers stepped to the plate to open the game a few minutes after 2 o'clock. The crowds were still filing in through the numerous entrances while photographers and moving picture camera men were snapping and cranking the players and the more notable among the spectators, magnates and league officials.

In the far background the Charles river wound its way toward the harbor, while Harvard University Rowing club crews paddled about in early fall practice and small boys swam along the shores oblivious of the struggle for baseball's highest honors being

OFFICIALS ARE INTERESTED MOST IN U-BOAT'S MISSION

Some Believe Its Purpose Was to Demonstrate the Possibilities of Submarine Warfare—Others Consider It Possible That the Craft Was Acting as Convoy to a Slower Vessel.

Washington, Oct. 7.—While the flying visit of the German war submarine to Newport harbor was the main topic of discussion among naval officers tonight, it was the probable mission of the submarine to America which interested them most.

While the distance covered by the submarine from Wilhelmshaven is well within the cruising radius of smaller vessels, it is not believed that even the big U-boats which journeyed from the North Sea to the Mediterranean and back could carry enough fuel oil for a round trip across the Atlantic as well as for a tour of cruising duty on this side. For this reason many officers appeared to believe that the purpose of the trip of the U-53 must have been more to give a demonstration of the possibilities of submarine warfare than actually to lie in wait for British or Canadian vessels. The merchant submarine Deutschland crossed the Atlantic and returned, but it is realized that the appearance of an armed naval underwater boat will create a much more profound impression, particularly upon the public mind in this country.

It was expected that the visit would revive rumors of a German submarine base on the Atlantic coast and of secret radio stations maintained along the coast by German interests for the purpose of communicating with the under-sea boats. For a submarine patrol off American or Canadian ports provisions would have to be made to supply fuel, torpedoes and food supplies.

While they are without any definite basis for an opinion, a majority of the officers around the Navy Department tonight appeared to think it likely that the U-53 had been sent over as a convoy for a slower merchant submarine or with the view of threatening Canadian transports and ammunition ships sailing from American ports.

The first trans-Atlantic submarine journey was made by British fighting craft similar to the American navy's "H" type boats, 10 of which were constructed in Canada by the American firm which held the contract and all of which arrived at their European destinations without accident. It is understood, however, that these boats were accompanied by surface craft carrying extra supplies and fuel.

Navy constructors, however, have never doubted the ability of Germany's big war submarines to make the trip.

Officers here await with interest such reports as may be available from Rear Admiral Knight andthose who accompanied him on his visit to the commander of the U-53.

If reports from Admiral Knight in this regard are received they will be regarded as confidential by the Navy Department. It would be considered a violation of neutrality for the department to disclose any information gained under such circumstances.

PARKER OPENS HIS CAMPAIGN AGAINST HUGHES' ELECTION

Declares the Return of the Republicans to Power Would be a National Calamity.

ATTACKS EIGHT-HOUR LAW

Denounces "Betrayal" of Progressive Party—Assails Professional Politicians.

Cleveland, O., Oct. 7.—John M. Parker, Progressive nominee for Vice President, in opening his campaign tour here today, criticised the Adamson eight-hour law and the manner of its enactment, denounced the "betrayal" of the Progressive party by its leaders at Chicago last June, scored the professional politician and labor agitator and made a plea for maintenance of the Progressive party organization and its principles. Mr. Parker arraigned both Republicans and Democrats for their alleged "machine" methods and policies of government, but was more severe in his criticism of the Republican party which he branded as the "party of special privileges."

He also reiterated his reasons, given in a recent statement, why he would work against Charles E. Hughes, Republican candidate for President, but he did not urge the re-election of President Wilson. His opposition was rather to the parties they represented than to the candidates themselves. Mr. Parker argued for the elimination from politics and national affairs, of sectionalism or agitation of sectionalism and deplored the "harping" by politicians upon hyphenated Americanism and as creating unrest and discord in the nation's life.

Profressives Paved Way.

Mr. Parker said in part:

"The Progressive party in 1912 made the people of the nation begin to think.

"It was the first political party of all time which put human welfare above the dollar, and the only party which ever dared make the struggle for right above the power of might.

"Its demand for the Regional Bank and removal of the power from Wall Street or any other interest to control the financial policy of this country has been encated into law, and today the wheat, corn, oats, cotton, cane, rice and live stock of our farmers largely represent the best class of security.

"Capital for years held labor under servile control and thus amassed vast fortunes. Today labor has capital terrorized, and by the power of the strike may cause untold suffering and widespread disaster, by the destruction of the edifice which gives capital profitable investment, and labor useful employment, a living and competency.

Attacks Eight Hour Law.

"Half baked laws by theorists are a menace to the prosperity of our nation, and the hurried passage of legislation by threats of a fearful strike is not only a dangerous precedent to the real working man, but is a serious reflection on the courage and statesmanship of our law makers.

"I am an earnest advocate of arbitration by fair and impartial men, not behind closed doors, but where each side will be given the fullest opportunity to show its side of the case, and the widest publicity given to all evidence brought out. This would insure that square deal demanded by the American people. No honest man would ask more or accept less.

"I believe in organization of labor as strongly as I believe in the organization of capital ,and at the same time would vigorously oppose unfairness on the part of either.

"The professional politician and the professional labor agitator can both be spared without loss. They represent the drones who are large consumers and produce nothing.

Assails Professional Politicians.

"Many professional politicians, State and National, are men who have been practically failures in their business or profession, and they enter politics, first in a minor capacity, and later as one of the cogs of the machine, whose orders are implicitly obeyed. Most of the men who have been successful in business and professional life take no active part in politics, with the result the professional politician and office-seeker largely control legislation, and are in a great measure, responsible for many of the present unbearable conditions .

"The truth of these statements is known to every fair thinking man and woman in America, and the remedy will come only when those who have made a success in life take an active, earnest interest in public affairs, and especially in the selection and support of public officials, whose honesty and common sense mean prosperity and contentment, and the prompt retirement to private life of those whose grafting and incompetency spells dissatisfaction and ruin.

"The Democratic party, through its President ,announces with pride that it is progressive and has enacted into law most of the essentials for which we Progressives have steadfastly fought. This statement emphasizes the weakness of Democracy, for where would it have been but for the brain, energy and thought of the party whose policies it has approviated?

"A great New York newspaper telegraphed, asking my position and 'Why will I speak against Hughes.' I answered:

Greatest National Calamity.

"'Because I have the right to vote as I please and shall fearlessly express

ALLIED FORCES IN THE BALKANS ARE DRIVING FORWARD

Teutonic and Bulgarian Troops in Both Macedonia and Dobrudja Are Hard Pressed.

BRITISH TAKE 5 VILLAGES

Fighting Contipues on Eastern and Western Fronts, But Situation is Unchanged.

Entente allied forces are pressing hard upon the Teutonic and Bulgarian troops defending occupied territory in the Balkans. Both in Macedonia and Dobrudja the invaders have been compelled to give ground before attack.

On a front of ten miles northeast and east of the Struma river, British troops have occupied five villages and have repulsed a Bulgarian attack against Nevolyen. Further west on the Macedonian front in the region of the Cerna river the Serbian troops have debouched from the Kaimakcalan plateau and advanced detachments have reached the Bela Voda river, about 16 miles east of Monastir.

French troops have occupied the town of German, on the eastern shore of Lake Presba, near the western end of the Entente line. In the region of Lake Butkova, near the Belaschitza plateau, Italian troops have advanced.

Russian and Rumanian forces have taken ground from the troops of Field Marshal von Mackensen in Dobrudja. The Russians have occupied two villages and have repelled attacks. Advancing on the right flank, the Rumanians have occupied some trenches and report the checking of attacks in the center.

An unconfirmed wireless message from Rome received in London says that another Rumanian expedition is reported to have crossed the Danube into Bulgaria apparently behind the line held by Field Marshal Mackensen.

The Bucharest official statement says there have been artillery duels along the Danube but does not specify in what sector.

There has been no change on the eastern and western fronts. Petrograd reports fighting in both Volhynia and Galicia and claims the repulse of Austro-German attacks in these fields. The artillery fire on the Somme front continues but virtually no infantry actions are reported by the belligerent capitals. Berlin states that the artillery battle has spread to north of the Ancre river.

In Transylvania, the Austro-German troops continue to advance. The Rumanians who retreated across the Alt river are being pursued through the Geister forest, Berlin reports. Bucharest mentions little activity in their section of Transylvania, but says the Rumanians have turned to the offensive near Petroseny.

Grand Duke Nicholas continues his offensive along the Black Sea coast in Armenia and reports the capture of Petra Kala fortifications from the Turks. Constantinople claims the repulse of Russian attacks along the coast and a Turkish advance in the Ognott sector to the south.

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 7.—Tufts, using a bewildering assortment of open play formations, defeated Harvard today 7 to 3. The Crimson was on the defensive for the greater part of the game.

STEAMER ON FIRE 120 MILES AT SEA

Liner Antilla Reported Last Night Her Passengers and Crew Were Taking To Boats

CUTTERS START TO RESCUE

Steamer Somerset, Twenty-Five Miles From the Burning Vessel, Also Responds to Wireless Calls for Help.

Newport News, Va., Oct. 7.—A wireless message picked up here shortly before 9 o'clock tonight from the steamer Antilla states the steamer is afire 120 miles off the Virginia capes and that her passengers and crew were taking to the life boats. The steamer Somerset, which is 25 miles from the Antilla, is proceeding to her rescue. The coast guard cutters Onondaga and Apache also have left to aid the burning steamer.

The Antilla is a Ward liner and is reported to have a large number of passengers aboard.

The message telling of the plight of the Antilla was picked up by the wireless operator at 8:34 o'clock. It was directed to the coast guard station at Cape Henry and asked that cutters be sent at once o the steamer's aid. After stating that the vessel was on fire, the message said: "All on board are taking to boats."

The Onondaga and Apache immediately were dispatched to the location given in the message.

Shortly after the first message was picked up, the wireless operator stated either 26 or 27 ships had taken up the call and were spreading it broadcast, offering to go to the aid of the burning vessel and directing vessels they believed to be closer to the Antilla to proceed there. One vessel whose name was missed by the land station in the confusion, secured an answer from the Antilla shortly after 9 o'clock when she inquired whether there were passengers aboard. The reply said, "Yes," but gave no details or number. The Somerset, which is said to be closest to the Antilla, said she was at 9:30 P. M., proceeding under full steam to the

TWO AMERICAN STEAMERS ARE SUNK, SAYS REPORT

London, Oct. 8.—Two American ships, the Harita and the Columbia, have been sunk, according to a dispatch received by the Norwegian minister in Petrograd from H. A. Falsen, the Norwegian consul general at Archangel, Russia, according to a Reuter dispatch from Christiania, Norway. The dispatch says that great difficulty has been experienced in obtaining accurate information.

The dispatch from Consul General Falsen said that besides a Norwegian ship, the American ships were sunk. A French steamer also was attacked, but escaped undamaged.

RUMORS OF A MESSAGE FROM THE KAISER STILL PERSIST

Despite Denial by Officials in Washington, Reports Spread That Ambassador Gerard, Now on Way From Berlin, is Bringing a Request That the President Intercede for Peace.

Washington, Oct. 7.—Official denials from all sides fail to down the persistent reports that Ambassador Gerard, returning from Berlin, is bringing direct word from Emperor William asking President Wilson's intercession for peace.

Despite the fact that Count von Bernstorff, the American ambassador, has stated he knows positively that Ambassador Gerard is coming on no such mission and that the State Department was moved today by the persistence of the story to issue an official denial, it circulated widely in official and diplomatic circles and was seriously discussed as a possibility.

The dramatic arrivar of the German war submarine U-53 at Newport with a package of dispatches for Count von Bernstorff just before he has had an audience with Mr. Wilson, makes it serve to add to the circumstantial events upon which those who believe that the current story of Mr. Gerard's homecoming base their expectation that some momentous development is about to take place. The German embassy tonight disclaimed any knowledge of the nature of the dispatches or the mission of the submarine in American waters.

State Department officials, after making official denials of the Gerard story for the last week, took notice of it officially for the first time today by issuing this statement:

"We have no reason to believe there is anything in it and every reason to believe that there is nothing in it."

One possibility that stands out is that President Wilson may know some reason for Gerard's home-coming that is not known to the State Department or the German ambassador, as it is not unusual for the President to deal directly with the American diplomats in the war zone.

Soon after the war began, President Wilson sent formal offers of mediation to the belligerents, official intimations came from both sides that any outside interference would be resented because both sides wanted a permanent peace for Europe by the triumph of the principles for which each contended.

It was made known at the White House on various occasions since when peace movements were presented by individuals that President Wilson did not think the time opportune for another peace offer.

It is being pointed out that while Mr. Gerard may not be bringing any request from Emperor William for President Wilson's intercession, he might have knowledge that the Emperor would not reject a new offer made entirely upon the initiative of the United States. Students of diplomacy point out that there are many ways in which a peace movement might be set afoot without affecting in the least the official denials of the current story.

It is an axium in conducting peace negotiations that premature publicity defeats them and those who believe there is something in the air at this time are not losing sight of it.

DEMOCRATIC PARTY IS UNITED FOR PASSAGE OF PROGRESSIVE LAWS

Republican Party Made Up of Discordant Elements and Can Accomplish Nothing.

WILSON TO INDEPENDENTS

President Says Every Line of His National Policy is Assailed, But No Substitute Offered.

CRITICISES "OLD GUARD"

By Inference, He Attacks Both Hughes and Roosevelt.

Long Branch, N. J., October 7. —Returned from his first invasion of the Middle West since the campaign opened, President Wilson today appealed to independent voters to support the Democratic party in November on the ground that it presents a united front for the passage of progressive legislation, while the Republican party is made up of discordant elements which can accomplish nothing.

Criticising the "old guard" of the Republican party, the President by inference attacked both Charles E. Hughes and Theodore Roosevelt, and declared that while every line of his national policy has been assailed, "no diagrams have been drawn of any other."

Old Guard in Control.

Mr. Wilson charged that the Old Guard was in control of the last Republican convention and made all the choices that were made by that convention.

The President spoke to a delegation of Progressives, Independents and college men who came here in a private train and marched to Shadow Lawn with a band playing popular music while they sang a song with the refrain: "He kept us out of war."

Mr. Wilson was introduced by Prof. Irving Fisher, of Yale, a member of the Roosevelt Conservation Commission, and Hugh Gordon Miller, a New York Progressive, who denounced the leaders of his party who have gone over to the Republicans. In the delegation also was the Wilson Guard, made up for former football stars.

President's Speech in Part.

President Wilson's speech here today was in part as follows:

"We are indeed at a critical juncture in the affairs of the world and the affairs of the world touch America very nearly.

"And in the midst of this situation, we are about to determine whether we shall change the line of our national policy. Every line of that national policy has been questioned but no diagrams have been drawn of any other; every one of the lines handsomely projected in the last three and a half years has been questioned and condemned.

"Fortunately the lines of this campaign have recently been becoming very clear indeed.

A Party United.

"On the one hand there is a party which is united, made up of congenial elements, and which has determined its direction by its performances and not by its promises. You know what the Democratic party has accomplished.

"On the other hand, what have we? It baffles description. Men of every sort and variety of purpose. I will not say united but associated for an unavowed object. More interesting than that and more ominous than that shot through with every form of bitterness, every ugly form of hate, every debased purpose of revenge and every covert desire to recover secret power.

"What would happen if the Republican party should succeed on the 7th of November? The only articulate voice, a very articulate voice, professes opinions and purposes at which the rest in private shiver and demur. One branch of that party - * * backed as a candidate for the United States senate in the state of New York, a man whose avowed position in respect of international affairs was unneutral and whose intention was, if he became a member of that great council upon international affairs at Washington, to promote the interests of one side in the present war in Europe.

Would Mean Reverse of Policy.

"Therefore ,we are warranted in believing that if the Republican party should succeed one very large branch of it would insist upon what its leader has insisted upon—a complete reversal of policy and in view of the support the candidate I have rererred to in New York received, that reversal of policy can only be a reversal from peace to war. If they do not engage in such a reversal of policy they may expect war in their own ranks.

"There would be new raids upon Republican majorities such as their territories and assets seem constantly exposed to and it would be impossible not to bring about such a breach as would lead to utter confusion in the counsels of the nation because there are other elements in that party which are looking exactly in the opposite direction whose sympathies and inten-

Wake Forest Finds The Quakers Easy

BAPTIST ADMINISTER A 33 TO 0 DEFEAT TO THE GUILFORD COLLEGE ELEVEN—VISITORS RALLY IN LAST HALF.

(Special Star Telegram).

Wake Forest, N. C., Oct. 7.—Wake Forest experienced little difficulty in administering a 33 to 0 defeat to Guilford's football eleven today, scoring upon the Quaker team within the first five minutes of play, and adding four more touchdowns the first half. The visitors rallied the last half and prevented the Baptists from scoring.

The game was characterized by numerous fumbles on both sides. Guilford's fumble proving more costly although Wake Forest lost two excellent chances for touchdowns on account of fumbles when nearing the Quaker goal line. Guilford made first downs but twice each half, while Wake Forest was forced to punt only once. A sensational 75-yard broken field run by Croom for a touchdown, together with the brilliant back field work of Champion, featured the game. Captain Jones, end, and Hollowell, full back, played the game for Guilford. Line-up:

AFTER SENSATIONAL RALLY BY BROOKLYN RED SO WON GAME

staged inside the walls of Braves' Field. To the fans this was incomprehensible, if noticed at all. They cheered their favorites with vim and enthusiasm from the moment the players were placed upon the field for practice until Scott's sensational stop and throw nipped Brooklyn's rally and saved the game for the home team.

Storm of Applause at Opening.

The real storm of applause began when Shore opened the game by causing Myers to foul out to Cady on the first ball pitched and continued with only a few interruptions throughout the entire contest. It was a typical American baseball gathering which understood the intricacies of the sport and which followed the game from grandstands and bleachers as only an American throng of spectators can. After the seventh inning, when Boston ran its score up to five runs, the thousands were inclined to lean back and take victory for granted, but apathy gave way to interest again and then to fear when Brooklyn's fighting club took advantage of Shore's weakening and made its bid for the honors of the initial conflict.

Boston Had Best Team.

Previous to that moment, the fans assumed that the Red Sox were to win in impressive fashion and they were justified in their opinion, for the play of the American League pennant winners was far superior to that of their National League opponents. There was a finish to the work of the Boston team which was lacking in the play of the Brooklyn combination. Both in hitting and fielding the Carriganites showed perfect co-operation and judgment as was demonstrated by their four scintillating double plays and the manner in which they switched from bunting to hard hitting attack at just the proper moment.

The National League contenders were not lacking in either spirit or playing tactics, but their hit and run offense was on the whole easy for the Red Sox to solve and turn back. There was also a noticeable lack of speed on the part of several of the Brooklyn players which, combined with poor judgment as to who should handle batted balls at certain critical moments of the game, put Boston men on bases instead of turning the plays into outs.

A Battle for Carrigan.

Keen critics of the game also think tonight that Manager Carrigan scored in his first battle of wits and generalship, with Manager Robinson, of the Brooklyn club, for the former by sending Shore to the mound against Marquard, saving his best left handers, Ruth and Leonard, for the games to follow. Marquard was considered by many to be Robinson's best card and the fact that he was defeated gives Carrigan the whip hand so far as pitchers go for the next game or two. It was a squeak, however, for the Red Sox and the Brooklyn players are far from being downcast tonight. They proclaimed boldly that they will not wait until the final inning to go after their opponents on Monday and that once they unlimber their bats there will be no question regarding the winner. All of which apparently fails to make any impression on the confidence of the Boston Americans.

MISS STIRLING WINS THE NATIONAL WOMAN'S TITLE

Belmont, Mass., Oct. 7.—Miss Alexa Stirling, of Atlanta, won the woman's national golf championship on the links of the Belmont Springs County Club today by defeating Miss Mildred Caverly, of Philadelphia, two up and one to go in the final match of the annual title tournament.

The winning of the highest golf honor for women by a 19-year-old girl was regarded as the most notable achievement in the history of the United States Golf Association.

Columbia, S. C., Oct. 7.—Springing a big surprise Newberry College outplayed the Uuniversity of South Carolina in the opening football game today and won 10 to 0, scoring a touchdown in the first quarter and a field goal in the third. Newberry used forward passes to advantage.

Davidson College Outclasses A. & M.

PREDICTIONS UPSET WHEN THE PRESBYTERIANS AT CHARLOTTE, DEFEAT AGGIES BY 16 TO 0 SCORE.

Charlotte, N. C., Oct. 7.—Davidson outclassed North Carolina A. & M. this afternoon and upset predictions by defeating the Aggies 16 to 0.

The A. & M. offense was helpless before the Presbyterians, Coach Patterson's team making but two first downs during the afternoon.

Davidson secured a goal from field in the first quarter and added a touchdown in the third and another in the fourth.

The game ended with the ball on A. & M.'s 12-yard line and an apparently certain touchdown in view. Black was the most consistent ground gainer for Davidson.

my honest opinion, regardless of political consequences. Because with great respect for Mr. Hughes' personal character, in my humble judgment the greatest calamity to this nation would be to again turn it over to the Republican machine, which is still under the absolute control of the same Bosses, against whom even life long Republicans arose in vigorous and overwhelming revolt.

"Because no man could have closely observed conditions at Chicago without marvelling at the complete domination of the Republican Old Guard or pitying Progressive leaders who succumbed to that powerful influence and then deliberately betrayed and sought to turn over to the Republican party, men who can neither be bullied nor bought.

"Because instead of Constructive statesmanship, Republican leaders prefer to indulge in personal abuse and seek to revive sectionalism, which all true patriots know is a dead and buried issue.

"Because I earnestly believe a national party unbought, unbossed, knowing no sectionalism and standing firmly for protection and human welfare, is urgently needed.

"For these and many other reasons I expect to go to Ohio, New York, and perhaps other states, say what took place at Chicago, and show what the Progressive measures have accomplished within the past four years for humanity and for the nation.'

And I am here to confirm that reply, which will be much amplified when I reach New York.

A Party of the "Interests."

"The Republican party has been the party of special privilege, and during its long period of absolute control of the affairs of the nation, has worked infinitely harder for the 'interests,' and then largely overlooked legislation for the benefit of our farmers, our working men, our women, our children, and other vital elements for human welfare.

"Read the Progressive platform of 1912, and see how the combined effort and thought of those who attended that splendid convention has largely shaped legislation for the past three years.

"Then look at the enthusiastic gathering held in Chicago, on June 7th last, every state and territory represented by patriotic, thinking men and women, who came at their own expense to do what they could to continue the fight for those principles in which we Progressives all deeply believe.

"See the tragedy of that splendid gathering, waiting for four days for the word that never came.

His Nomination Not Sought.

"I speak freely in regard to these conditions, because the nomination for Vice President was not sought and not desired by me, and in accepting the nomination, I used the words: 'If perchance I should be elected,' and then as a friend congratulated me, as I left the platform, stated I should be condoled with for it hit me like a thunder clap, to have learned a few minutes before that we had been deliberately betrayed by former Republicans in whom we believed, and whose sole object was to again secure control of the power and patronage of the national government.

"My unanimous, unsolicited nomination meant nothing to those men, whose action on June 23rd showed they belonged body and soul to the Republican machine, and had forgotten Progressive principles, which were to them a temporary dream. They first deserted the Republican party, damned the 'Old Guard' for every conceivable crime, pledged their honor and loyalty to Progressive principles, and then deserted and betrayed the Progressive party, and having again locked arms with the same old Guard Republicans, they so bitterly denounced four years ago, now have the audacity to appear before the people of the United States in the role of patriots, endeavoring to save the nation.

Would "Fleece" the Nation.

"To save it from what?

"To save it from the prosperity which is rampant from New York to California?

"To save it from the farmers who are making large crops, for which they are realizing more satisfactory prices than ever before in their history?

"To save it from the working men whose brain and brawn is needed in every state in the Union, and who are receiving more money than ever before in their experience, with short hours of labor?

"To 'Save the Country' to them means to fleece it for their personal, political and financial gain.

"Such brazen hypocrisy from such men who must be judged by their past record cannot deceive the American people.

"As a large cotton planter I have nothing whatsoever to protect, but as an earnest advocate of protection, have reached these conclusions after deep study and very careful thought, and believe protection absolutely essential for national prosperity.

"I cannot go with free trade democracy, which has shown its incapacity, and neither can I go with the Republican party, which has shown its rapacity, utter lack of principle and total subservience to those who would protect the calsses in America as against the masses.

"I stand firmly and squarely as a Progressive, and believe the greatest benefit that can accrue to this nation will be two great national parties, the conservatives and the Progressives, both along broad patriotic lines, absolutely free from sectionalism of any character, permitting the states to work out their own problems, and do team work for the upbuilding of the nation. Such parties would attract to them the best and brainiest citizens of America, who, without the sacrifice of one iota of principle, could take such stands on the tariff and other great matters as their patriotic judgment might dictate.

Are No "Hyphenates."

"There are no German-American, Irish-American, French-American, or other hyphenated Americans in this country. They are either all American, or else all foreign citizens.

"Even American men naturally regard with some reverence and sympathy that country or nation which has been the home, for centuries, of their ancestors, and it is a grea pity politicians harp upon 'Americanism,' and 'Political Hyphens,' to create unrest and discord.

"In the event the day should come (and let us hope it never will) when our men must fight and die for our country, history will emphatically repeat itself, and show that we have no more truly patriotic citizens than those from foreign lands, who have made America their home, and whose splendid patriotism, when needed, is measured by their all.

"Stamp out for all time the politician's cry of sectionalism.

"No single locality holds a monopoly of the patriotism or brains of the United States, and team work alone will enable America to continue to accomplish those results which have made her the marvel of the world."

GOVERNOR STUART PRINCIPAL SPEAKER AT KINGS MOUNTAIN

Anniversary of Revolutionary Battle Celebrated Yesterday.

Kings Mountain, N. C., Oct. 7.—Governor Henry C. Stuart, of Virginia, was the principal orator today at the celebration of the 136th anniversary of the Battle of Kings Mountain, held at the town of Kings Mountain, the site of the Revolutionary battle. Governor Locke Craig, of North Carolina, introduced Governor Stuart. Congressman E. Yates Webb, was master of ceremonies. The two governors were accompanied by their official staffs.

Following the ceremonies in the town the two governors motored to the battle field, five miles distant, where Governor Stuart viewed the monuments and memorials marking the activities of Virginia soldiers engaged there against Cornwallis.

Woodrow Wilson was made to "sit up and take notice" four years ago, Wilmington must do it again—we have his record now.

Yale Overwhelms Virginia Eleven

SOUTHERNERS DEFEATED 61 TO 3, THE LARGEST SCORE MADE BY THE BLUE ELEVEN IN TWENTY YEARS

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 7.—Yale today overwhelmed the University of Virginia football team 61 to 3, atoning for last year's 10 to 0 defeat at the hands of the Southerners by rolling up the largest score made by a Blue eleven in 20 years.

Virginia lacked the driving power and punting ability that its 1915 eleven showed, while Eli's team was a more powerful combination than that which met defeat a year ago. Soon after play began Virginia recovered a Yale fumble and being unable to gain, Warrington kicked a field goal from the 30 yard line. After that the Charlottesville team was never dangerous, while the smashing attacks of Yale swept the hard fighting Southerners off their feet. Touchdowns came in rapid succession and the score was held down by the holding of the Blue line, penalties for this being frequent.

Most of Yale's gains were made by savage thrust of tackle, which allowed the Blue halfbacks to make a clear gain, while the interference smothered the visitors' secondary defense. LeGore was the star of the game.

ENTHUSIASM RUNS HIGH

Red Sox and Robins Loyally Supported by Wilmington Fans—Shore Relative of Wilmington Minister.

While the crowd that thronged Braves' Field at Boston yesterday afternoon to witness the first game of the world's series, between the Red Sox and Robins, greatly outnumbered the one that gathered on the post office green opposite The Morning Star score board, they certainly did not have any more "pep."

The yells that rent the air in Wilmington, when the Robins staged their dying rally in the ninth inning, would have done credit to the ranks of the Brooklyn Royal Rooters, who were following the fortunes of their pets at Boston.

When the news was received that Fred Merkle, pinch hitting for Pfeffer, had walked, and sent the fifth Brooklyn run over the plate, the local admirers of the National champions went wild. Their enthusiasm, however, was matched by the cheers of the Red Sox rooters when Scott threw Jake Daubert out at first, and ended the struggle.

It will be of interest to Wilmington fans to know that Ernie Shore, the elongated slabman, who twirled for Boston yesterday, is a cousin of Rev. J. H. Shore, pastor of Fifth Avenue Methodist church, this city. Mr. Shore, (the ball player), is a resident of East Bend. Rev. Mr. Shore is also from Forsyth county, but has been away for some time. He states, however, that he has been following the career of his noted relative, since his advent into the big leagues, with a great deal of interest.

WASHINGTON AND LEE IS DEFEATED BY ARMY ELEVEN

West Point, N. Y., Oct. 7.—The Army football team defeated Washington and Lee University here today 14 to 7. The cadets outplayed the Virginia collegians from the start. The Army excelled in the running game, Oliphant, Place and Vidal doing fine work in advancing the ball. McEwan, Army captain, played fine at center.

The soldiers launched only three forward passes, all of which were failures, while Washington and Lee tried the pass 12 times, five of which were successful for a total of 75 yards gained. The visitors were unable to do anything at all with the Army's line.

IN ROBESON THIS WEEK

Messrs. Godwin and McCaskill Continue Canvass of District.

Lumberton, N. C., Oct. 7.—Congressman H. L. Godwin and his Republican opponent, Mr. A. L. McCaskill, of Fayetteville, having spent the greater part of the past week in joint canvass of Cumberland county, will this week invade Robeson, spending three days in this county making speeches at half a dozen places. They have canvassed Brunswick and have five counties yet to cover in their itinerary throughout the district.

Their appointments are for the hours of 2 and 7 p. m. and their itinerary through Robeson is as follows: Tuesday, afternoon, Red Springs, night, Maxton; Wednesday, afternoon, Rowland, night Fairmont; Thursday afternoon, Lumberton, night, St. Pauls. Next week they will canvass Columbus.

Carolina Defeated By Tigers 29 to 0

TAR HEELS ABLE TO HOLD PRINCETON IN CHECK ONLY AFTER SEVERAL SUBSTITUTE PLAYERS WERE PUT IN.

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 7.—Princeton defeated North Carolina here today 29 to 0. After Princeton had run up a safe number of points Coach Rush sent in a string of substitutes and it was against these that the visitors were able to hold the Tigers in check.

The game was replete with sensational plays. In the second half Jack Eddy for Princeton made several 30 and 40 yard runs. He also threw a forward pass 25 yards in the third period which resulted in a touch down.

Princeton played poor football in the first period. The line-up:

TOP O' THE MORNING.

There is no escape from this logic: If I love Jesus Christ, which means if I am loyal to Him, which means if I keep His commandments, I am in touch with everybody to the ends of the earth who needs Him and I cannot wash my hands and say that you must excuse me from this matter.

—MALTBIE D. BABCOCK.

We would like to be given a cue to a Wayne county barbecue.

Charles E-vasion Hughes really might be in favor of the evasion of Mexico.

At that Union League gathering Taft took Roosevelt's hand, but he must have seen nothing but the deuce in it.

Hughes says he wants to preserve the county, but, of course, the people know he would preserve it for Big Business.

Editors are not buying new model motor cars, but they have money, nevertheless. They are still holding on to a portion of their 30 cents.

Hughes thought he got hold of a "paramount issue" in the eight-hour law, but it turned out to be a worthless paramount tissue.

By averting the railway trainmen's strike, President Wilson saved this country millions of dollars. We know that he saved our groceryman several dollars.

It is now reported that a combination has a corner on hides. We are not in the combine, but we have a five-reel pipe dream about getting a corner on Easy street.

The Republican candidate for president is threatened with a loss of voice. If he gets so he can't talk, Colonel Roosevelt will talk for him and say things that have been left unsaid up to now.

"Those who have cotton, tobacco, farm products and automobiles to sell are selling them right along. They are getting the cash, and it seems that sellers have no reason to worry over the tariff.

We have demanded on several occasions that Judge Hughes speak out, but if he prefers to keep up his pussy-foot tactics we will take it for granted that he does not want us to know a darn thing that he thinks he will do.

Probably Hughes told Roosevelt what he would do and maybe that's the reason Teddy is supporting the Honorable Mum for president. Surely the Rough Rider understands his candidate, else he would be calling Hughes a felt-footed side-steeper.

The superintendent of the mint is speeding up the coinage of dimes, jitneys and brownies, owing to the great demand. The superintendent will please strike off a double amount at once as we are compelled to increase the demand.

If Hughes isn't going to do any more than he says he is going to do, he will have very little to do if he is elected president. All we have found out from him so far is that he would be a president who would undo things. We have been satisfied for some times that he takes us for a mind reader.

Once upon a time Big Business scored a tremendous success by scoring all the people as their contributing assets. The Republican party furnish B. B. the tariff protection and the captains of industry did the rest by doing the people. Woodrow Wilson and the Democrats called a halt on that soft and easy process, wherefore a Democratic President and his Democratic acessories look like a poison squad to tariff grafters.

HUGHES CAN'T RISK HIMSELF TO TALK OUT

Judge Hughes keeps on standing pat on his unutterableness as to what he would have done had he been president and had it been up to him to deal with the Mexican and European situations. Of course, his mumness is more deliberate than adroit evasion. The fact is, the presidential candidate of the G. O. P. cannot afford to go around blabbing and blurting out things like ex-President Roosevelt and former Governor Hanly, of Indiana, the Prohibition candidate for president.

Roosevelt is outspoken to the effect that in the case of the sinking of the Lusitania he would have mobilizing himself and seized all interned and laid up German ships in America. According to all international agreements, that stunt would have been an act of piracy, as a matter of course, but what does Teddy care about piracy? Because Germany violated international law and outraged and shocked civilization in the heat of war. Roosevelt's spectacular move on the chessboard would have been another violation of international law. However, we all know that when Teddy got ready to seize Colombian territory he just "took" it, so when he gets ready to seize the ships of another country he would just go ahead and seize them and let all of us take the consequences. However, international controversies call for diplomatic exchanges before breaks occur, because no nation would know what minute its ships would be seized or some other act of war would be committed against it by some ruler like Teddy. According to his disorderly ideas, if followed by all nations, the United States might wake up some morning and find out that during the night some other nation had committed an act of piracy or war against it.

There is the mentally disciplined, statemanlike and orderly Woodrow Wilson who knows the international rule and follows it. By means of the rules of diplomacy, emphasized and hedged about by international agreement at The Hague, he arraigned Germany in a diplomatic way and mobilized the brains which finally committed her to international law and caused a cessation of her submarine method of warfare. Not a shot was fired, not a soldier's nor a marine's life was lost, and yet Germany was brought around to the principle of search before seizure and safeguarding neutral lives before sinking a helpless ship without warning. The masterful Wilson followed the humane and international way and by means of successful diplomacy he enforced international law by recommitting German sovereignty to the civilized practices of warfare. Teddy scouts international law and his way of "taking" Panama is that of the highwayman and his way of seizing ships in retaliation is that of the pirate. Were nations to have such junk ideas men at their head, wars would break out after the fashion that riots are precipitated.

Sensible people recognize the lofty diplomatic triumph of Wilson in bringing the great German empire into a peaceable agrement with the great American Republic. However, the butt-headed method of Roosevelt loses him nothing but the confidence and trust of well-ordered and sane-thinking people. He is not running for president, so he had nothing to lose when he mouthed out the way he would have dealt with Germany while the Allies were holding her off. Teddy can afford to talk like an international brigand, but former Justice Hughes has to pussy-foot and sidestep and evade and avoid and saw wood.

There's Hanly, who has a chautauquerized training in statemanship. He says he would have intervened in Mexico and shot up all classes of Mexicans because of the outrages committed by their criminal class. Hanly can be checked off as a man unfitted to be trusted with authority and power. There would be danger in committing authority into Hanly's hands, but he has nothing to lose by talking out through his hat. He is a presidential candidate who has not the slightest chance of becoming president. A Prohibition candidacy for president is a joke and Hanly makes it a greater joke than ever. Neither he nor Roosevelt have a thing to lose, except what bit of sense they think they have.

It is quite different with Hughes. He is a candidate for President, so he fears and consequently avoids speaking out. We know why he does not tell what he would have done and what a., he would do. Why, it is because he is afraid that he will put his foot in it with the people. He is afraid to trust himself and stand his ground like Roosevelt or Hanly. Hughes is mightily afraid he will drop his candy if he should get gay and tell the mighty things that he would do to struggling Germany and ravished Mexico. His evasion and pussy-footinging certainly does indicate that he has enough horse sense not to trust himself to talk out.

So long as he is afraid that he will put his foot in it, by talking out, at random, we are almost sure that he would put both feet in it. In fact, we suspect it to such a fearsome extent that we are convinced that a man of such indecision would never do for President. He does not even "vacillate" for he takes no position at all, hence he has not given himself a chance to shift two ways for Sunday.

The only man in the bunch who can afford to talk out is Wilson. He does it, too, and his English is good, and people certainly can understand what he says and means. Hughes charges him with "vacillating" but the people don't see any of that article in what Wilson says. We have noticed that he does not sidestep, neither does he have the least fear that Hughes has of speaking out. There is wisdom in what Wilson says, and if Hughes thought that he had some wisdom himself, he would throw out some of it for what it is worth.

Nevertheless, it is not what Wilson says but what he has done and can be trusted to do that entitles him to the confidence and support of the people. Hughes has taken up three months of our time, but he has not said a thing that impresses us with his fitness for president. He talks like he is running for the position of knocker, but we have settled down to the conclusion that a man who is guilty of three months of steady evasion, utterly disqualifies himself as a judge of what he calls "vacillation."

INVESTORS DO NOT BELIEVE IT'S "TEMPORARY."

Four years ago, as in former presidential campaigns, it was predicted by the Republican politicians that the election of the Democratic candidate for president would certainly be followed by a panic. Woodrow Wilson was elected, and, instead of the predicted panic materializing, the country is enjoying general prosperity unsurpassed in the history of the nation. Not only did the Wilson administration prevent the occurrence of any panic, but it put into operation a new banking system which effectively prohibits the money magnates from springing a panic upon the country ever again so long as the new system is in operation, which means so long as the Democrats control the government.

This year the Republican politicians are forced to admit that the country is in the midst of prosperity instead of a panic, even under Democratic administration, but they have the nerve to predict, in the face of the failure of their predictions of four years ago to materialize and in the face of the unsurpassed prosperity that has come to the country under Democratic government, that if such government is continued after this year, the prosperity the country is enjoying will prove only "temporary." Candidate Hughes has earnestly sought to convince the country that it is enjoying only "temporary prosperity."

Now, let's see about that. It is a fact universally recognized that the best index to the prospects for future prosperity is the attitude of capital towards permanent investments. Nothing is truer than that capitalists are not going to make large investments of a permanent nature at a time when the business horizon is shadowed by impending depression. They are averse to making such investments even during periods of prosperity if they believe that prosperity is only "temporary."

What is the attitude of capital and capitalists at the present time toward investment in developmental enterprises? With tremendous force the Manufacturers Record is answering that question now every week in its numerous stories of new enterprises, new development undertakings, enlargements of industrial plants, the building of new factories, etc., etc., in the South. For instance the current issue contains reports of numerous new enterprises, including many requiring large investments. They range from $4,000,000 for a grain elevator at Baltimore to $250,000 for building additions to a limestone products mill in West Virginia. A few of the investments noted in this one issue of the Record are the following:

The Norfolk & Western Railway will invest $2,000,000 for building additions to shops, constructing freight station, buying locomotives and cars, etc., at Roanoke. Funds for future improvements of the Pine Bluff (Ark.) Company will be provided by increasing capital to the extent of $800,000 for electric light and water and railway systems. A $300,000 expenditure is reported proposed by the Western Maryland Railway for buildings, machinery, etc., to construct and repair steel cars at Cumberland, Md. Buildings costing $140,000 will be erected and machinery costing $200,000 will be installed at Baltimore by the Cocoanut Products Corporation, of New York, the plant to have a daily capacity of 125 tons of copra. The Penn Mary Steel Co., Sparrows Point, Md., which awarded contract some days ago for constructing 240 additional coke ovens, ordered a plant to recover benzol from these 240 ovens and from the 120 ovens it is now operating. Peanut oil, peanut cake stock feed, etc., will be manufactured in a $200,000 plant which the American Peanut Co., of Fort Worth, proposes to build. The Texas Resources Development Co., Chicago, is considering plans for mining 30,000,000 tons of iron ore and for building iron furnaces with steel plant at Texas City. It is understood that the corporation contemplates investing several million dollars for iron mining, iron and steel manufacturing, etc., to develop a steel industry at tidewater in Texas.

It is said that many cotton manufacturers, even in North Carolina, are going to vote for Hughes in the coming election, regardless of the fact that their mills are running full time, day and night, and some of them are unable to keep up with their orders. Their reason for supporting Hughes is said to be that they want a protective tariff on manufactured cotton goods, expressing the fear, notwithstanding the prosperity they are now enjoying, that continuation of Democratic government at Washington will mean that this prosperity will be only temporary. Such a position is about as logical as to argue that in order to assure the continuation of a desired effect, the cause producing it must be removed. We have ample evidence that there are many men heavily interested in the cotton milling industry who take no stock in such an illogical position. Again ,we have but to peruse the columns of the current issue of the Manufacturers Record to find that many men of means consider the present situation and the future prospects bright for the cotton milling industry.

The Record presents some interesting figures denoting the progress of the industry during the past three months. During July, August and September there were 98,688 spindles and 1,396 looms announced for installation, the investment required being $2,467,200. Ten enlarging mills are expending $2,140,400 of the amount named. From January first to September 30 the installations reported total 332,820 spindles and 4,357 looms, the investment aggregating $8,320,500. "These figures indicate that Southern cotton manufacturers are active in continuing installations which are enabling the South to consume greater portions of its cotton crop from year to year," the Record is moved to remark.

It is very evident that, whatever credulous and unintelligent voters may be fooled into believing about it, there are many capitalists who take no stock in the "temporary prosperity." talk.

MOTHERS FIGHT FOR MILK FOR THEIR BABIES

That was the pitiful and appealing headline of a New York newspaper story a few days ago. Because of the strike of the milkmen, hundreds of thousands of babies were threatened with a lack of sustenance and their frantic mothers, nerved by the dire necessities of their little darlings, had gone forth to secure milk at any cost—even to get into a mob and fight their way to the milk depots of the distributors against whom the milkmen are striking. With the supply exhausted, what could those despairing aid wailing mothers do?

You can imagine their distress yourself and you can imagine the terrible results of a strike still affecting the food supply of the little innocents. It is bad enough for grown people to have their food supply cut off, or even squeezed up to prohibitive prices, hence it is quite reasonable to justify The Star's contention that no such strikes should be possible. When the public is the element most seriously affected by strikes, compulsory arbitration is the sensible remedy to apply to them. Of course there is now no law for compulsory arbitration of contentions involving the public as well as the parties to disputes and strikes, but in the absence of such law President Wilson did the next best thing by settling the trainmen's strike by congressional legislation. That national strike threatened privations and losses of inconceivable magnitude to all of us, and no matter what may be thought of the remedy it was a small matter compared with the enormity of the disaster hanging over all the people in America.

Events like the street car men's strike and the milkmen's strike in New York quickly succeeded the action taken by Congress, as if to providentially impress sensible people with the wisdom, foresight and prompt action of President Wilson.

Time and incidents seem always to come quickly to the rescue of President Wilson, and it is thus that the people are enabled to realize what a ready and wonderful man he is for facing emergencies and crises threatening disaster and ruin to our people. Quite true it is that the Baltimore Sun remarked a few days ago that "if President Wilson had not intervened for the protection of the country and kept the trains running, 100,000,000 people might by this time have been plunged into dire suffering."

Alas! There is no one to intervene for the babies or the public in New York, hence our valued Baltimore contemporary takes the incontrovertible position that the public welfare involved in these distressing strike situations "makes obvious once more the necessity of some compulsory process of arbitration by which the public may be protected from the effects of such ruthless and heartless struggles."

The wisdom of it is quite apparent, and surely the people have reason to be convinced that it all strikingly justifies President Wilson's wise course in averting a Nation-wide strike of the most stupendous proportions and the most calamitous consequences.

THE PRICE OF MEAT, WHY?

To the Editor of The Star:

About 1890, during the time that Grover Cleveland was president of the United States, meat was 4 to 5 cents a pound, flour $3.50 to $4 per barrel, corn 38 to 42 cents a bushel. During 1901-2, meat had gone up to 7 1-2 and 8 cents, flour $5 to $6, and corn in proportion. In 1913 meat was selling at 12 1-2 to 14 cents.

Why is everything going up so fast? Let us see. When everything was selling so low you might go through the country anywhere and find that the farmer had plenty of corn, potatoes, peas and other things that go to make home happy. Watch the farmer late in the evening go to his barn, get a pail of corn and go call up his hogs. See what a fine drove he had. See his cattle in the fall when the crop was all housed. He would let his hogs that he wanted to fatten into the field and by the time they got through with the field it did not take long to fatten them.

Most of the farmers made enough meat to last them the year through. There was not much money stirring then, for it was not needed. The farmer made about all he wanted at home. He sold eggs at 8 to 10 cents a dozen, to get his sugar, coffee, etc. Now, the people who wanted to live without working, here is where they came in. They were not making anything, so they got up a scheme to make the farmer think he was doing the right thing, so they began speaking over the country, telling the advantages they would have if the speakers were elected to office, so they could get the stock law passed. "Yes, sir, Mr. Farmer, you can make you a small pasture, and keep your cows, hogs, sheep and goats in there and not be bothered with the hog cholera."

Say, and believe me, they are not bothered with the cholera, or the hogs either, and not much of any other kind of stock. So this begins to make meat and lard go up. Now the farmer has to make cotton and tobacco, to get the money to pay for his meat. This puts the price of corn up. Think of the factories that have been built in the United States during the last 20 years calling to the farmer to come to them to work. Is it any wonder everything is so high now?

Things will remain so, too, until there is more farming and stock raising done the old way. If the first man that mentioned the stock law in the United States, bit a germ laden mosquito, or a "skeeter" would have bitten him on some tender spot and sent him to his eternal home, where the worm dieth not, the country would have been far better off than it is at present.

Now, reader, you see why provisions are so high. It is not the present administration. So when you hear a man say that the Democratic party has caused high prices, you can tell him that he is mistaken, and tell him the whole truth. The unlimited demand for these things is what has put prices up.

I hear so many people talking about so much meat and flour going to the war country, having caused prices to go up. Prices have gone up but very little on the account of the war. Think what you were paying before the war started. What manufacturer or packer will not sell his stuff where he can get the most for it? Let everybody stop and think the matter over carefully. Mud slinging don't pay.

AN APPRECIATION.

Following is an appreciation to the Brigade and its founder, who has harbored and guided the fellows since their "kid" days.

Now that the Colonel has ordered them out into the world to carry on the work which he has accomplished, the parting cannot be without its heartbreaks and goodbyes.

The writer, to the best of his ability, voices the sentiments of the "fellows" in the following lines:

The Old Oak Door is closed;
The windows, too, are tight.
Within, all is dark and dismal,
Darker even than night.
No more will your dear old walls
Tingle with laughter and shout;
No more shall we gather together,
The Colonel has ordered us out.
The summer has changed to winter
With cold and stormy weather;
And instead of being open, the Door,
Your oak has grown together.
Your walls will be covered with vines;
And Silence will be all about.
No more shall you echo with laughter,
The Colonel has ordered us out.

CURRENT COMMENT.

There was never a time in its history when the future of Fayetteville looked so bright as in this year of 1916. To begin with, the canalization of Cape Fear river, securing a minimum depth of eight feet of water between Fayetteville and Wilmington, will soon be an accomplished fact. What that means to Fayetteville, and indeed to the whole State, is known to all who have acquainted themselves with the situation. This city will be a basing point for freight rates and a great distributing center, to which dealers in all commodities will come and from which vast stores of merchandise will be shipped. Lower Fayetteville (Campbellton) will grow in importance and business rapidly, and on the wharves along Cape Fear river there will be continual stir and bustle. The importance of the canalization project and its great value to Fayetteville have already been demonstrated by the fact that without it, this city would have no chance to secure the government armor plant. In fact, it has put us on the map.—Fayetteville Observer.

One of the most encouraging things for the Democrats is the circumstance that so many forward-looking men of all shades of political belief are pinning their faith to Wilson. When men like Edison, Charles W. Eliot Luther Burbank, Matthew Hale, Bainbridge, Colby, Ben Lindsey, Henry Ford, and others who might be mentioned forsake customary party affiliations and come over to the support of a man of different political training and affiliation the significance is necessarily very great. Undoubtedly the moral strength of the nation is on the side of the President. The sentiment that favors a continuation of the effort for a larger degree of social justice for all men, no matter in what condition of life, is coupled with the feeling that the one man in this country who sympathizes most with this sentiment and who could be most effective in using the great power of the presidency to promote it, is Mr. Wilson. He has been tried and not found wanting. Friend and foe alike admit his unusual capacity for bringing things to pass. The unbiased mind everywhere admits that the things he has sought to accomplish and has accomplished have been things that he thought were for the good of the whole people. Uprightness of purpose is ascribed to him by practically every one with any knowledge of men and wisdom of extraordinary extent, it is widely admitted, he possesses. The thinking, earnest, conscientious men and women of the nation are coming to the Wilson standard in numbers that spell victory at the polls.—Raleigh News and Observer.

SAYS UNITED STATES HAS DRAWN WRONG CONCLUSIONS

Lord Cecil Says There is No Attempt to Discriminate Against Trade

London, Oct. 6.—The comment in the United States concerning the possible effect to the commercial measures contemplate by the recent Paris economic conference of the Entente allies, led Lord Robert Cecil, minister of war trade, to declare today that wholly wrong conclusions had been drawn from them, and especially with regard to those conclusions attributing any attempt to exclude or discriminate against the trade of the United States with the Entente allies after the war.

Peace and Happiness cannot be measured by dollars and cents, but it cost money to conduct a campaign. Contribute to the Wilson Fund, thereby showing in a slight degree your appreciation of the service rendered the country by our President.

DEMOCRATS RESPOND IN LIBERAL MANNER

More Than Two Thousand Dollars Starts Fund.

Despite Saturday Rush and Division of Interest Over Baseball Championship, Local Fund Has Auspicious Opening.

The Woodrow Wilson Democratic Club of Wilmington yesterday most auspiciously opened its campaign for subscriptions to the campaign fund and although many business men could not be approached during the rush of Saturday and interest was divided to a large extent by the world's baseball championship, the eight sub-committees had reported last night a total of more than $2,250 subscriptions with a large number yet to be tabulated and reported during the coming week.

Promises of support in this campaign have come from quarters entirely unexpected and the executive committee of the club is encouraged to believe that before the end of the period allotted for this special work, Wilmington's splendid record of four years ago may be equalled, if not surpassed. The list appended below represents only a part of the pledges secured thus far and others will be tabulated and added to the total on Monday.

Following instructions of the Wilson Club at the re-organization meeting Tuesday night at the Court House, the executive committee appointed the following gentlemen for chairmen of the various sub-committees: Cyrus D. Hogue, Thos. E. Cooper, Louis E. Hall, B. A. Merritt, W. D. MacMillan, Jr., D. H. Howes, Jr., R. L. Harker, Jos. W. Little, Geo. C. Jackson, S. A. Matthews and H. E. Bonitz.

At a meeting of these sub-chairmen last evening at the office of General Chairman W. A. McGirt, eight of the 11 sub-committees handed in reports of contributions and made reports that thus far they have only "scratched the surface" and that more effective work might be expected this week. Assurances came from another committee that it has already a long list of subscriptions which will be turned in the early part of the week.

Monday the canvass for funds will open in full blast and all committees are asked to "get right." Any subscriptions made to The Star will be included under the name of any committee through whom the donor may desire to contribute. Earnest Democrat workers intend to wage a quick, snappy canvass for the next ten days.

It is expected that all committees will make report Monday night and that the fund will grow rapidly from now until the close of the campaign. The following subscriptions are gratefully acknowledged:

NEGRO DISAPPEARS.

Goes on Fishing Trip Into Brunswick, and Fails to Return.

The police were notified yesterday afternoon that Ned Chambers, colored, who lives on Wilson's alley, between Ann and Nun streets, has disappeared from his home.

According to the information received at headquarters, Chambers went down the river Thursday morning on a fishing and hunting trip, presumably in Brunswick county, and has not been heard of since. His relatives became alarmed at his continued absence yesterday and notified the police.

Chambers lived with his wife, who with his brother, who resides at 308 Ninth street, are his only relatives in the city, so far as can be ascertained.

NINE NOTED SPEAKERS COMING TO WILMINGTON

To Deliver Addresses at "Once-a-Month Meetings for Men"

Dr. J. J. Hurt Announces List, Which Inclues U. S. Senator Robinson, Judge Pritchard, Ex-Governor Glenn and Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Seldom if ever in the history of Wilmington has a list of speakers of equal number and of such an average of prominence been secured to deliver a series of addresses here as has been engaged by Rev. John J. Hurt, D. D., pastor of the First Baptist church, for the "Once-a-Month-Meetings for Men," which will be inaugurated in November, probably about the middle of the month, when Hon. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Assistant Secretary of the Navy, will be heard.

The series of meetings will continue for nine months, according to the schedule announced by Dr. Hurt yesterday. The list of nine speakers and their subjects, as announced by Dr. Hurt, is as follows, and they will be heard in Wilmington in the order named:

Hon. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Assistant Secretary of the United States Navy, Washington. Subject, "Preparedness: National, Local, Individual."

Hon. Jeter C. Pritchard, Judge United States Circuit Court, Asheville, N. C. Subject, "The Conservation of Manhood."

Douglas W. Freeman, Ph.D., managing editor the News Leader, Richmond, Va. Subject, "The Newspaper as a Moral Agent."

Hon. Robert B. Glenn, member United States Boundary Commission, Winston-Salem, N. C. Subject, "The Great National Remedy for Evil."

Hon. Joe T. Robinson, member United States Senate, Lonoke, Ark. Subject, "The Influence of Christianity in Building the Nation."

Dr. William Louis Poteat, president Wake Forest College, North Carolina. Subject, "Putting the Kingdom First."

Rev. Baron DeKalb Gray, secretary Home Mission Board, Atlanta, Ga. Subject, "The Destiny of Dixie."

Hon. Carl Schurz Vrooman, assistant secretary United States Department of Agriculture, Washington. Subject, "Farm Life as Related to the Nation and the Kingdom."

While these "Once-a-Month Meetings for Men" will be held in the main auditorium of the First Baptist church, they are intended for men of all churches and of no church affiliation. The denominations represented by the foregoing list of speakers include Baptist, Episcopalian, Methodist, Presbyterian and Congregationalist. Dr. Hurt has had these meetings for the last seven years, in his pastorates in the West and in Durham, and "with profit to everybody," he says. They have been attended by immense audiences of men, of every church and of no church. The meetings will be held usually in the afternoon of the first Sunday in the month. The exact date of the first one, which will be held following the election, has not yet been announced.

This series of meetings and course of addresses was founded by Dr. Hurt seven years ago, in connection with his pastoral work, on these personal convictions, as stated by him yesterday:

"The church must help men to see the problems of education, and industry, and health, and government in the light both of revelation and of the best experience from men. We get the revelation from God and we get the experience from men who have traveled their several special lines further than we.

"The outstanding need of our cities is that men should know one another better. Those engaged in every line of work should come together now and then to consider the good of all. When we know each other better we will differ with one another less."

Speaking with special reference to the inauguration of the "Once-a-Month Meetings for Men" in Wilmington, Dr. Hurt said:

"Though somewhat isolated geographically, our city is like other cities. We have the same fundamental weaknesses, the same needs, the same possibilities. The same spirit that has advanced other cities will advance ours, —and whatever helps on our city helps our individuals, our homes, our schools, —helps on the Kingdom of God."

THE RECORDER'S COURT

Two Young White Men Submit on a Charge of Fighting.

Toby Green and Oscar Bordeaux, two young white men, were in Recorder's court yesterday morning, charged with engaging in an affray at Seventh and Nixon streets, about 5 o'clock Friday afternoon. Both submitted and were allowed to pay the costs.

The two men were alleged to have staged their fight in the presence of some 200 people, mostly colored. Bordeaux was said to have been the aggressor, and it is alleged that he followed Green into a yard and struck him after the arrival of the officers with the patrol wagon.

Honey Green, colored, gave a demonstration of the wonderful control that she has over her tear ducts, when she was arraigned on a charge of disorderly conduct. She protested her innocence very vehemently but the preponderance of the evidence was against her, so she too was sentenced to come across with the costs in the case. Her bank roll was not sufficient to cover the demands of the law, so she will sojourn at the county farm for the next 30 days.

Rudie Walker, colored, was sent to the roads for 30 days for failure to pay his costs after being recognized some time ago.

HAD SUCCESSFUL OPENING.

Hanover Building and Loan Association Opens 24th. Series of Stock.

Mr. H. F. Wilder, secretary and treasurer of the Hanover Building & Loan Association, states that the opening of the 24th series of stock of the association, which took place yesterday, was one of the largest ever made since the organization and this is considered remarkable owing to the fact that several other associations had opening on the same date but the success Mr. Wilder attributes to extensive newspaper advertising as well as to its successful management. The series will be open for another week for the benefit of those desiring stock.

WILMINGTON CORN SHOW ONLY ONE MONTH OFF

Splendid Co-Operation From the Railroads This Year.

Unusual Interest in Surrounding Counties—Good Prospects for Fine Exhibits—Active Work Begins This Week.

Committees in charge of the different features of the Wilmington Corn Show have made an early start this year and the fact that the show will be 50 per cent. larger and the exhibits more varied and extensive than ever before, augurs well for the success of the undertaking, as evidenced by the interest already displayed by Wilmington people and in the nine counties embraced in the territory.

The new arrangement of the prize list; the splendid co-operation of the railrods; a central down-town location and the effective work already brought about to have the best agricultural exhibits ever shown here, with the many other attractive features, are some of the things that are giving the show wide-spread attention.

Better railroad rates have been secured this year than ever before. For the first time the Atlantic Coast Line announced lower rates outside of the given territory of the fair and it will be of interest to note takes in Goldsboro and Wayne county, with similar extensions of the territory on its other lines out of Wilmington. In addition to this, the Coast Line this year will have printed information in regard to the special rates, etc., to be circulated in the different towns along the lines. The Seaboard is also cooperating in giving special rates and will also issue information for distributon at its stations in the territory of the fair.

The advertising committee is also making arrangements to thoroughly circularize the different counties, with various forms of information pertaining to the many features of the show and have enlisted the merchants of Wilmington in its efforts to give the show the publicity it deserves.

The fact that the executive committee of the Corn Show number among its members representatives from several of the surrounding counties this year is a great advantage in the interest of the general proposition. Those identified with the Corn Show organization outside of Wilmington are: Messrs. J. T. Bland, Jr., of Burgaw; N. A. Curris, of Clarkton; J. J. Hendren, Chadbourn; R. T. Melvin, of Supply, and J. A. Turlington, Salemburg.

It is the intention this year to award county prizes and efforts are being made at the present time to get the different board of commissioners interested in this proposition in order that the necessary money will be secured for this purpose. Of course, this in no way intereferes with the regular prizes in the general exhibit from all counties, but interest is being taken in this particular feature and it is believed will stimulate the exhibitors to make great efforts to have the exhibits from their county the best at the fair.

The usual method will be pursued in Wilmington to finance the general proposition and the business interests will be approached for subscriptions to the underwriting plan, which proved so successful last year and created so much favorable comment. The Corn Show Finance Committee some time ago sent out letters to the underwriters asking if they were willing to again participate in this plan and the response was very generous and encouraging. The finance committee will be actively engage din this work this week.

The usual interest is being manifested by Sorosis, which contributed so much to the success of the fair last year and the efforts of the different committees appointed from this organization will be along broader lines with the same attraction and general interest in the show as a whole.

Letters are being received by the Corn Show executive committee from people in different parts of the territory offering their assistance to work for the show in their different localities, and especially interesting and unusual are the letters from those who came to Wilmington last year to see the show and were so delighted and surprized at its splendid success.

The Rotary Club is planning this year for a parade representing every phase of business life in Wilmington, which will be an equally important feature of the Corn Show as last year and will be the same attractive and commendable undertaking.

LOCAL OFFICERS TO TESTIFY.

To Appear Before Brunswick Grand Jury in Case of Negro Mobsters.

Three Wilmington officers, Sheriff S. P. Cowan, Deputy Sheriff C. H. Keen and County Officer H. Mack Godwin, have been summoned to appear before the grand jury at Southport Monday to give evidence in the case of several negroes who have been arrested on a charge of attempting to mob Deputy Sheriff George Skipper, of Brunswick, at Navassa a few months ago.

The trouble between the Brunswick officer and the negroes started after he had shot one of their number in an attempt to arrest him. The negroes, some 200 strong, had surrounded a house where Mr. Skipper had barricaded himself, and it was necessary to send for the Wilmington officers to come to the aid of the imperiled man.

Sheriff Robinson, of Brunswick, has been very active in investigating the affair, and has caused the arrest of some 20 negroes, who are believed to have been implicated in the affair.

LOCK NO. 2 COMPLETED.

Snag Boat Starts Operations on Northeast Brance of Cape Fear.

Lock No. 2 at Brown's Landing has been completed, according to an announcement made yesterday at the office of United States Engineer Major A. E. Waldron, yesterday. The walls have been entirely constructed and the gates hung. Delivery of the stone for the construction of the rip-rap dam across the river at the lock site has already begun and the dam will be completed within a few weeks.

The snag boat "Black" has started operations at Hallsville on the North east river, which point is about 88 miles up the river from Wilmington. The boat will work down the river from that point, removing sunken logs and snags from the channel.

COL. JAMES R. YOUNG WILL MAKE ADDRESSES

At Fire Prevention Exercises in Wilmington Schools.

Wilmington Will Join Rest of Country in Observance of Anniversary of Great Chicago Fire—Programme Announced.

Wilmington will join with the rest of the country, particularly the larger cities, in the observance of Fire Prevention day, this being the anniversary of the great Chicago conflagration, which occurred on October 9, 1871.

Col. James R. Young, State insurance commissioner, has accepted an invitation to attend the exercises which will be held in each of the six white schools of the city tomorrow morning. At each of the schools, Colonel Young will make a short address on "Fire Prevention." Mr. Raymond Hunt, assistant general manager of the Tidewater Power Company, will also speak on the subject of proper electric wiring. The children have prepared special programmes that will be of interest and it is hoped that the parents and friends will turn out in large numbers.

The programme for the observance of the day has been prepared by Supt. John J. Blair, of the city schools, and Fire Chief Charles Schnibben, together with a committee composed of representatives of the Chamber of Commerce, the Rotary Club and other civic organizations. The hours for the exercises at the different schools have been arranged as follows:

9:00 o'clock—High School.
9:30 o'clock—Union school.
10:15 o'clock—William Hooper school.
11:00 o'clock—Isaac Bear Memorial school.
12:00 o'clock—Cornelius Harnett school.
12:45 o'clock—Hemenway school.

It is expected that fire prevention day will be observed more widely this year than ever before. Through the executive secretary of the Safety First Federation, Mr. Frederick H. Elliott, a far-reaching publicity campaign has been put into operation and the word has been passed along so that practically all the big cities and countless small ones will observe the day appropriately.

The point that promoters of fire prevention day want to impress most is that all homes, public buildings, etc., be thoroughly cleaned of the rubbish accumulated through the summer. Another activity urged is that all heating, lighting, and fire fire extinguishing apparatus be examined.

The schools have taken hold of fire prevention programmes with a great deal of enthusiasm. Fire drills will be held, exercises in fire extermination and the reading of literature on fire prevention will take a prominent part in the programmes.

The growing popularity of fire prevention day each year is undoubtedly one of the reasons why fire losses in great municipalities are on the decrease. In New York, for instance, the fire loss decreased in one year from $13,000,000 to $8,000,000 because the public was educated to fire prevention.

The stupendous losses charged up to fire in the United States and Canada in 1914 were something like $250,000,000. Add to this the cost of maintaining fire departments, a matter of another like sum—$500,000,000 a year—enough to build a Panama canal.

"A RARELY FINE RECORD."

University News Letter Commends High Stand Taken by Wilmington.

"All told no community in this country makes any better showing in this important matter," is the way the University News Letter sums up the public health situation in Wilmington in its last issue after calling attention to several corrections in a recent report carried by this periodical.

The criticisms of the News Letter were based upon figures culled from monthly reports but did not take into consideration all the factors entering into the situation. Believing that so important a publication should state the facts in their true setting, Dr. Chas. T. Nesbitt, county health officer, submitted to the editors additional data. This week's issue contains the following:

"We are indebted to Dr. Charles T. Nesbit, the county health officer of New Hanover, for calling our attention to the fact that no serious epidemic exist among the meat animals of that immediate section, that tuberculosis in cattle is rare, and that under local regulations no tubercular meat animal or any part of the same is allowed to be sold—a standard that is even higher than that of the Federal meat inspectors. Not a single animal presented for slaughter at the Wilmington abattoir during the month of July was found to be unfit for slaughter for any reason.

"Every city in America, says he, markets milk with a much greater bacteria count than a hundred thousand per cubic centimeter. The health practice of Massachusetts is probably the most perfect we have in America, and the maximum fixed for Boston is 500,000 bacteria per cubic centimeter. The milk counts published by various cities, including Wilmington, are designed to show especially the extent to which improvement in dairy practice has progressed in a given section.

"The last report shows only one dairy with a bacteria count of more than 100,000 per cubic centimeter; 12 with 50,000 or less; and seven with 10,000 or less. Nine dairies submitted no samples.

"We take pleasure in adding that Wilmington and New Hanover have been celebrated in the public prints by Dr. C. W. Stiles, of the United States Public Health Service, for the superior quality of attention given to public health and hygiene, and to remarkable achievements in this field of public service. All told, no community in this country makes any better showing in this important matter."

LOCAL TRAINMEN TO VOTE FOR WILSON SAYS MR. WADE

Local Chairman Says President Proved Himself True Friend of Labor.

According to Mr. J. E. L. Wade, local chairman of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen for the Wilmington District, practically every man with a union card in this district, regardless of previous political affiliations, will cast his vote for Woodrow Wilson for President on November 7th.

Questioned as to whether local trainmen would vote for Wilson Mr. Wade said: "That is something you hardly need to ask. In his stand on the 8-hour law President Wilson proved himself a true friend of labor. Hughes is lined up with a bunch that is against us. We could expect nothing from him if he were elected, and we expect nothing from President Wilson except justice. Whether he voted the Republican ticket in the past or not, you will find the man with a card lined up for Wilson this year."

Buys Residence in Fayetteville.

Yesterday's Fayetteville Observer: "The Armfield residence and lot on Haymount was bought at auction today for $7,100, the purchaser being the Southern National Bank, of Wilmington. Mr. J. D. Bellamy, attorney for the bank, bid it in."

AN OPPORTUNITY FOR SERVICE

South Atlantic Conference at Richmond Discusses the Programme of Y. W. C. A. in Field.

To one unacquainted with the scope and programme of the National Y. W. C. A., a copy of the programme of the South Atlantic Field Conference, recently held in Richmond, would be a revelation. The association is making a vital impression on the life of the women of the country. It is every day meeting the needs of the girl in the city, the small town and the country and giving the girl the thing she needs next.

It may be physical education for the girl who works all day over a machine; it may be an English class for the girl who longs to carry on her literary education after leaving school; it may be a Bible class for the girl who has only begun to realize the wealth that is in that black bound book. Then the association offers an opportunity for all women to give of the abundance of their life and experience to others.

The South Atlantic Field Conference was an expression of the growing work of the association in the five states which compose the field. Only recently Miss Jane Skinner has been called to the staff of the field committee to promote town and county work in the field and her presentation of the possibilities of this part of the work was most interesting. Then, Miss Taylor, of the National Board, sounded the key note of the Conference in her address, "The Young Women's Christian Association As It Touches World Conditions," when she pictured how the associations in the warring nations are bringing all women together in service and preparation for the very changed lives when the war is ended. She told how in India that terrible curse — the caste system — is fast breaking down and the Christian Association is welding together the women of the country in service.

Mrs. Elizabeth Preston Allan, of Charlotte, former chairman of the South Atlantic Field, presented the plans of the committee in this field in charge of the work for the colored girls and women. There is only one association for the colored people in this field and that is in Richmond but the committee expects to organize similar associations elsewhere in the field, the next one being probably in Charlotte.

Miss Helen Davis, field executive secretary of the National Board, told of the work among the girls along the border states where our soldiers are and where their coming has created a completely new social condition. The work has been the forming of the girls of the cities and towns into clubs for the study of Christian citizenship and social service. The clubs have been entertained by the soldiers and the clubs have had parties to which the soldiers have been invited. This work seems to illustrate the elasticity of the association and its ability to adapt itself to pecular conditions.

The ever present question of finance in the local association girl work, the residence problem and the foreign work all came up for discussion and many valuable ideas were exchanged. Rev. W. R. Bowie, of St. Paul's church, Richmond, and Dr. Walter Lingle both conducted each day of the conference an hour of Bible study. Mr. Bowie lectured on the "Social Aspects of Christianity" and Dr. Lingle on "Fundamentals of the Christian Religion."

There were 17 cities of the South Atlantic Field represented, and 95 delegates attended the conference which was a most successful one and marked a new era in the association work in the field.

HUNDREDS WITNESS EXCITING CHASE AFTER ALLEGED THIEF

Captors of Boy Are Surrounded and Dime Procures Release.

An exciting chase took place about 9:30 o'clock last night down Front street, when a small boy who is known to his companions by the name of "Allie", pursued by the cry of "Stop Thief," wove his way through the crowds on the street at that time in a vain attempt to escape the clutches of Charles Hudson, an employe of Woolworth's store. The chase ended with the capture of the boy when he had almost reached the Murchison building and was in the act of turning down towards the Cape Fear river.

Followed by a crowd of several hundred curious persons, Hudson, with the assistance of another young man started back towards the store dragging the little fellow by the arms, the latter yelling at the top of his voice all the while and refusing to use his legs. They had proceeded less than a half block when the crowd entirely surrounded them and prevented further progress.

At this juncture, a local theatrical man elbowed his way to where Mr. Hudson stood and demanded to be informed what it was all about. When told that the boy had stolen a toy water pistol, he asked how much it cost and handed a dime to the capter with the intimation that it might be just as well to let the boy go. The boy was released and the crowd dispersed. Whether the boy actually took the pistol or had it in his possession was not ascertained.

When seen at the store later, Mr. Hudson declared that boys had been giving the store management much trouble of late on Saturday nights, but they had never been able to catch them before.

In addition to his duties as county physician, Dr. Stovall will visit the schools as frequently as possible.

STORES CLOSE FOR HOLIDAY.

Hebrews of City Observe Day of Atonement or Yom Kippur.

Owing to yesterday being the Day of Atonement, known in Hebrew as Yom Kippur, all of the stores in Wilmington owned by Hebrews were closed until 6 o'clock yesterday afternoon. This holiday was the culmination of the penitential days, inaugurated by the Jewish New Year. One of the most impressive features of Yom Kippur devotion was the memorial service for the dead.

FURNITURE ECONOMY

YOU CAN SAVE ON YOUR PURCHASES HERE AND NOT SACRIFICE QUALITY

FALSE ECONOMY

It is fasle economy to deprive yourself and family of the full luxuries and home comforts of an attractive, well furnished and comfortable home. It is false economy to buy cheap-looking, cheaply constructed furniture, no matter how cheap the price may be. For such furniture is expensive at any price, no matter how low priced it may be—for the simple reason that you are sacrificing quality—and when you do that, you sacrifice lasting satisfactory service, which should be the prime requisite in making a decision. When you buy the right kind of furniture, the first cost is the only cost. When you buy inferior furniture its days of usefulness are limited, and it has to be replaced.

Home of Furniture Values

Buy It Here For Less

REAL ECONOMY

Real economy in selecting home furnishings is to buy with an eye to style, comfort and lasting satisfactory service. Such furniture is not cheaply constructed, of cheap material, with a cheap finish, by cheap unskilled labor, but is made by master craftsmen who are artists in their line. Furniture of this character is not necessarily high in price, but naturally has a selling price based upon its real worth. Such furniture which you should buy—the kind that looks good, is good, wears well and lasts a lifetime, is here at prices lower than to be had at the average store. The reason we can undersell is because we underbuy. We invite your careful inspection.

RED CROSS SOCIETY WILL HOLD FIRST FALL MEETING

The members of the Wilmington Red Cross Society will hold their first fall meeting Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock at the Young Men's Christian Association.

One of the important features of the meeting will be the hearing of reports by the various committees on the work done during the summer, and the formulation of plans for the fall and winter activities of the society. Mrs. Cuthbert Martin, president of the local branch, has expressed the wish that all members be present at the meeting.

The local society is planning a very aggressive campaign for the sale of Red Cross seals. With the exception of last year, the Wilmington society has also made the biggest sales of these seals, but was surpassed by Greensboro last year. The society expects to exceed its record of last year when 90,000 seals were disposed of. Another important matter which will come up for action, is the appointment of a nominating committee in connection with the annual election of officers which will be held on November 25th.

MOUNT OLIVE NEWS NOTES OF INTEREST IN SOCIAL CIRCLES

Miss Hankins was born in Mount Olive, and her many friends are always glad to welcome her back to the place of her nativity.

Mrs. V. Grimes gave a survey of the need of the work at home. Miss Annie Rose Southerland made an interesting and helpful talk on the general condition of State Mission work. INEXPENSIVE "TRAVEL" THAT MEANS MUCH TO ONE'S HEALTH

(By Old Hurrygraph.)

Hendersonville, N. C., Oct. 7.—When you talk of travel so many people regard it as something for a favored few, and that it means the spending of much money. There is one class of travel that crosses oceans and continents, and is expensive; but that is not the only kind. A trip that is most beneficial, and really worth while, is not necessarily a long one. The spirit of America seeing, and America enjoyment counts much to the American.

There are thousands of women and men who need only to pass from their regular daily surroundings to environments that are fresh, sweet and pure—if only for a day or two. Do this once a year and life is refreshed and stored with new energy and strength. This does not carry with it the idea of discontent; but you should gain new views, a broader interest in America's attractions, and the health-giving advantages of your own country which are beyond the range of your daily vision and intercourse.

The farmer needs to break away from his fields and daily routine; the city man from pavements and "sky-scrapers;" the lawyer from his office; the merchant from his desk; artisans from the whirl of their pleasures. If they never leave these daily rounds they are wilfully starving themselves—depriving themselves of what is best in life.

The true spirit of travel is to be eager to see another—any other place than the spot in which you live, move and have your occupation or calling. Where to go, and how to get there is often a perplexing question. Let me suggest a beautiful spot; nature's open air sanitarium— a mountain "roof garden"—Western North Carolina, Hendersonville, the gateway to the government's Appalachian Park, on the Southern Railway.

RALEIGH W. C. T. U. DELEGATES RETURN FROM WILMINGTON

Yesterday's Raleigh News and Observer:

"The Raleigh delegation to Wilmington to attend the W. C. T. U. convention came back enthusiastic over the reception accorded them in the Cape Fear metropolis. They found Wilmington folks hospitable right up to the reputation of the New Hanover capital and Wilmington itself a city fair to look upon.

"They were much impressed with the cordial welcome which representatives of the various organizations and Mayor P. Q. Moore gave them on the opening night of the convention, the speakers emphasizing the conviction that although North Carolina adopted prohibition as a State policy years ago there remained yet a great field for the W. C. T. U., and bidding the women Godspeed in their work.

"The various departments reported progress and steps were taken looking to vigorous work along several lines during next year.

"The next meeting will be held at either Goldsboro, Bethel or Elizabeth City. All three places extended cordial invitations and the executive committee will decide which one shall be accepted. Mrs. T. Adelaide Goodno, of Raleigh, was re-elected president and Mrs. J. E. Stevick, of Raleigh, corresponding secretary.

"The following Raleigh ladies came back from Wilmington yesterday afternoon: Mrs. G. N. Walters, Mrs. M. J. Carroll, and Mrs. L. W. Lancaster. Mrs. S. H. Scott, of New Bern, who is visiting relatives in the city, also returned yesterday to spend some time here before going to New Bern. Mrs. Goodno from Wilmington left for Philadelphia to spend some time. Mrs. Stevick returned to Raleigh last night."

INTERESTING SOCIAL EVENTS OF THE WEEK AT WILSON

Wilson, N. C., Oct. 7.—One of the most interesting events of the season was held last evening when the Methodist Senior Philathea Class and the teachers of that Sunday School entertained at the Methodist parsonage from 8:30 to 11 in honor of Miss Sue Corbet, who will on the 17th of this month become the bride of Mr. Luther David Knott.

The parsonage was beautiful in ferns, golden rod, and autumn leaves.

Soon after the last guest arrived a heated contest was engaged in. Each one present was given a card on which the words "Knott-Corbett," were printed and were challenged to make as many words from the letters in these two words as possible. When the cards were collected it was found Miss Bishop, teacher of the class, was the successful contestent, she having made thirty-six words. A box of beautiful crepe de chine handkerchiefs was gracefully presented to her by Miss Bobbins, secretary of the class. Immediately the prize was given to the guest of honor, Miss Corbet. During the evening delicious refreshments were served. At a late hour the guests dispersed, having showered the beloved Philathea not only with many kitchen utensils, but also many happy wishes for the future.

The members of the Woman's Club and quite a few other interested parties gave the children at the new graded school building a Lunch Room Shower at the new school building Wednesday morning. Quite a few very tasty dainties were served to the eager children, who had the time of their lives at this unexpected shower of blessings on them.

The Dolce far Minte Card Club began the season Wednesday afternoon at four o'clock at the home of Mrs. Alvis Patterson. All the members of the club were present and the afternoon proved to be an enjoyable one.

The Wilson Book Club held a very interesting and instructive meeting at the home of Mrs. B. S. Herring Thursday afternoon. A good many of the members were present in this meeting.

Miss Victoria Hudson, of the Presbyterian Orphanage at Barnum Springs, gave an illustrated talk Wednesday evening at the Presbyterian Church on the Orphanage. It was not only of great interest to the members present, but instructive as well, and enjoyed by all.

The Wilson girls at Salem seem to be carrying off a great many honors. Miss Mary Hunter Deans has been elected president of the Athletic Association, Miss Marjorie Davis, vice-president, and Miss Lalla Rook Fleming was called on to make the opening freshman's address in the usual "get-to-gether meeting" of the entire school.

There were a very few witnesses. The news of the wedding was an agreeable surprise to the majority of the couple's friends in this section. The bridegroom is a prosperous young farmer, with a large plantation in Duplin county a few miles south of here. The bride is from Mecklenburg county, of charming disposition and very popular with her friends in this part of the state.

Y.; Miss Pauline Burton, of Richmond; Miss Hazel Giltner, of Tamaqua, Pa., and Miss Marie Pairo, of St. Louis. Mrs. Will Alley left for California to spend the winter.

It will probably be next spring before the new country club at Gray's eight miles from here, is opened up. Construction of the buildings has been delayed, and it may be midwinter before they are completed. The club recently took out an option on a piece of the big leased tract, on which it is proposed to erect the buildings, with a view to ultimately acquiring in fee simple the entire grounds. There are fifty members of the club, practically every one of whom owns an automobile. A good road for motoring connects the property with the city.

Mrs. W. H. Armistead and little daughter, Margaret Louise, have returned to their home in Portsmouth, Va., after a visit here with Mrs. Armistead's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Holderby.

Besides his trade in horses, mules and automobiles, he has identified himself with other business interests. Last spring his friends persuaded him to allow his name to be presented to the Democratic convention as candidate for county commissioner.

MRS. A. M'INNERNEY DEAD

Passed Away Friday Night at Home of Son in Florida.

It was a great shock to relatives and friends in this city when Mrs. John Meier received a telegram yesterday from Lakeland, Fla., stating that her mother, Mrs. Ann McInnerney, had passed away Friday night. Mrs. McInnerney only left Wilmington about ten days ago to visit her son and despite her advanced age was in her usual good health.

Mrs. McInnerney was in the 85th year of her age, and left Wilmington about ten days ago with the intention of spending some time with her son in Florida. She was a woman of many lovable traits of character and her death will come as a great shock to her relatives and friends in this city.

She is survived by one daughter, Mrs. John Meier, of this city, and two sons, Mr. T. J. McInnerney, of Wilmington, and Mr. Daniel McInnerney, of Lakeland Fla., all of whom will have the tender sympathy of many friends.

The remains will be brought to Wilmington and interment will be made in Oakdale cemetery. The funeral arrangements will be announced later.

COLLIDES WITH ICE WAGON.

Negro Runs Into Vehicle in Attempting to Dodge Automobile.

While riding a bicycle near Third and Market streets yesterday afternoon, shortly before 5 o'clock, William Brown, colored, attempted to dodge an automobile and took a header into one of the big wagons of the Independent Ice Company, with the result that he was carried to his home unconscious and seriously, if not fatally, injured.

Mrs. A. G. Ricaud and Miss Farrar happened to be passing along the street at the time of the accident and Mrs. Ricaud rushed into the street and dragged the body of the unconscious man to the grass plot near the curbing. Joe Bethea, colored, the driver of the ice wagon, was arrested and carried to the city hall on a charge of reckless driving, but was later recognized for his appearance before the Recorder on this charge.

Every true and loyal Democrat should contribute to the re-election of Woodrow Wilson. Help the fund grow.

NEGRO LABOR GETTING SCARCE

Wilmington Not the Only Sufferer From Activities of Northern Employers. Whole South Aroused.

Dame Rumor had it that no less than 250 local colored laborers would hie themselves northward on the 6:45 o'clock train last night, but a visit to the union station by a representative of The Star proved the rumor to be unfounded. It is reported, however, that a would-be employer of labor for a Northern railway company has been in the city for the past week, but the report could not be confirmed from any reliable source.

That the whole South is aroused over negroes going North in large numbers, is shown by the fact that there is a growing sentiment in favor of taking steps to prevent the resulting unfavorable effect upon Southern agriculture and industries. The present wholesale exodus of negroes from the South to points in the North appears to be growing rapidly in many Southern states. It is unofficially reported that the Atlantic Coast Line system, especially in Florida, is already beginning to feel the effects of the shortage of colored labor. Such labor always scarce in southern Florida, is becoming more so as the negroes drift northward.

The three states most affected up to the present time are Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama, and it is generally agreed that unless some steps are taken to render residence in the South more attractive or in the way of higher pay, the labor situation is likely to become acute. It is reliably reported that two large employers of labor in Wimington have already taken the last mentioned action and have raised the wages of their colored employers substantially.

Several Wilmington firms, who are large employers of colored labor, have lost a score or more of their employes, some of whom had been in the service of the companies from two to 18 years, according to County Officer H. Mack Godwin.

At first the Federal government lent its aid to the Erie, Pennsylvania railways in sending negroes North, but before more than a thousand negroes had been sent North, the government found that there were very few unemployed negroes in the South. For this reason its agents were instructed to confine their efforts to getting employment only for labor in the immediate section. Since that time the indications have been that there is sufficient demand to take care of all resident labor throughout the South, and the Department of Labor has announced that under no circumstances will it attempt to find a position for a man already employed. It appears to be the desire of the government that the negroes remain in the South, provided sufficient work is offered.

A dispatch from the Atlanta bureau of the Christian Science Monitor to that paper sets forth the situation in Alabama and Mississippi as follows:

The city of Montgomery, Ala., has passed an ordinance making it a crime to entice labor from that point. In Aberdeen, Miss., there has been passed an ordinance whereby a labor agent must pay $250 as a privilege tax. This closed the doors of a certain labor agency which had been especially active there.

In Birmingham, Ala., the question has been given serious discussion from many viewpoints. Negroes have taken passage from that district in considerable numbers to points in Kentucky, West Virginia, Indiana and Pennsylvania. The negroes are being promised higher wages by Northern agents. Alabama is experiencing one of the busiest times in its history and the movement northward of large numbers of her laborers is considered particularly unfortunate at this time.

In Mississippi the situation is said to be more acute. Negroes are leaving certain cities by carloads. If only the unemployed were shipped away, no objections would be raised, it is asserted. In many cases, however, employed unskilled laborers are moved north in considerable numbers to the consequent detriment of employers in the affected parts.

The negro laborer is in the main a free lance and few of his class have shown any hesitation in accepting the offers of higher pay, improved living conditions and more favorable surroundings offered by northerners. It is recognized that some inducement must be offered to influence the laborers to remain within the borders of the Southern states.

The Jackson Daily News, after asserting that the South will go bankrupt if it loses its colored labor, says: "Everybody seems to be asleep about what is going on right under our noses. That is, everybody but those farmers who have wakened up of mornings recently to find every male negro over 21 on his place gone—to Cleveland, to Pittsburg, to Chicago, to Indianapolis. Better jobs, better treatment, higher pay—the bait held out is being swallowed by thousands of them all about us. And while our very solvency is being sucked out from underneath we go about our affairs as usual—our police officers raid places for 'loafing negroes,' bring in 12, keep them in jail all night, and next morning find that 10 of them have steady, regular jobs and were there merely to spend an hour at the only indoor recreation they have. * * * The negro wants to move, and goes at the first opportunity."

CATCHES A BIG DRUM.

Mr. Allie J. Mitchell Lands Forty-Pounder Off Seashore Hotel Pier.

Mr. Allie J. Mitchell, an ardent follower of the art that made Izaak Walton famous, added new laurels to his reputation as an expert angler when he landed a drum off the Seashore hotel pier at Wrightsville Beach on Friday night that tipped the beam on the official scales of the New Hanover Fishing Club at 39 pounds and two ounces.

While this is not the biggest drum that has been caught off the New Hanover coast this season, Mr. George H. Hutaff having landed one that weighed 42 pounds some time ago, it is the biggest landed at Wrightsville Beach and was sufficiently large to make other anglers more determined than ever to continue their activities a while longer.

SCARCITY OF IMPORTED TOYS

Wilmington Toy Dealers Have Laid in a Supply, But Prices Will be Considerable Higher.

Although the war in Europe has to a great extent cut off the supply of imported toys, Wilmington kiddies need not know the difference, according to the statements of two prominent local toy dealers. True the imported toys are going to be mighty scarce as a general thing, but Wilmington's gift dealers have taken the precaution to lay in a supply before the scarcity became noticeable.

The fond fathers and doting mamas, who are anticipating delighting little Mary or Marie's heart with one of these crying-sleeping German dollies, may expect to pay from 30 to 50 per cent. more than they have been paying in previous years.

True they can buy an American doll much cheaper, but according to the statements of Mr. J. W. H. Fuchs and Mr. J. H. Rehder, the domestic doll is far inferior to the imported ones in both workmanship and quality, and even these are going to be more expensive than in former year by some 15 per cent. Both Mr. Fuchs and Mr. Rehder have laid in a supply of the imported ones, sufficient to supply the needs of Wilmington's little mothers.

Another toy that has had its knell sounded by the war is the winding mechanical affair, and the trolleys, fire wagons and limousines that propel themselves over the floor by the simple process of being wound up will be conspicuous by their absence during the coming yuletide.

As a substitute for these, the friction toy will make its appearance. This brand of plaything is strictly a domestic affair made in America, and designed as a substitute for, and a successor to, the winding type, which is of distinct foreign origin. These friction toys should be more popular than their foreign predecessors for they can be operated by simply giving them a rub on the floor, and they scoot away like a frightened rabbit, pursued by a hound dog and a hungry negro.

For the little girls, the latest innovation will be the suites of doll furniture. They are handsome in design, and are perfect fac-similes of real furniture.

So while the H. C. L. bugaboo hovers everything, even to the children's toys, the little folks need never know that they are very fortunate in living in a city where the toy merchants were so thoughtful as to lay in a supply of the things that are so dear to the childish heart.

SUBMARINE U-53 OF THE GERMAN NAVY PUTS IN AT NEWPORT, R. I., FOR 3 HOURS

report my arrival. They will be glad to hear it."

Letter Is Mailed.

The correspondence, contained in a single envelope, was mailed at the local postoffice at 3 o'clock and should have started for Washington about an hour later. It should be at the German embassy early tomorrow morning.

Commander Ros eappears to be about 35 years of age. About him as he talked to the newspaper man were grouped four officers and the crew of 33. The officers were in the blue uniforms of the German navy and looked as if their clothes had been brushed and pressed for the occasion. The crew wore black oil skins. Captain Rose wore an iron cross and other decorations. He said that they had water and provisions for three months.

Soon after the U-53 had anchored, a fleet of pleasure boats surrounded her and several persons, including a number of women, were allowed to come aboard. They were permitted to roam at will about the deck.

The U-53 is 65 metres, or more than 200 feet in length, with a corresponding beam. She appeared larger in every way than any of the submarines of the L-type that are now operating in Narragansett bay.

Through the periscope the visitors could plainly see many familiar points in Newport. The vessel was equipped with wireless.

The armament consisted of two guns, fore and aft, and four torpedo tubes. Handy to the tubes which were forward, were eight torpedoes.

Going down the companionway by means of a long iron ladder, the visitors were admitted to the plainly but comfortably furnished quarters of the officers. On the walls were paintings of Emperor William and noted men of the German army and navy, past and present.

The quarters for the crew were equipped with bunks that closed up against the vessel's side. Aft of the sleep quarters was the officers' mess room and the galley in which all cooking was done with electricity.

SOMETHING DOING AT TABOR

Number of Important Events Scheduled for the Near Future—Parents' Meetings.

(Special Star Correspondence.)

Tabor, N. C., Oct. 7.—One of the important occasions of this month will be the big minstrel show to be pulled off by the high school boys of the Tabor graded school, on Friday evening at 8 o'clock, October 13th, at the school auditorium. The boys are working hard and the entire show will be up-to-date and full of rich fun. The songs are all new and jokes clever. One of the main features will be the acrobatic work of six members of the school "gym" team. The public is invited.

The school authorities announce with a great deal of picasure the coming lecture on Friday evening at 8 o'clock, October 20th, by Dr. Wm. Thomas Laprade, of the department of history in Trinity College. Dr. Lagrade is considered one of the big men of this State and has a high reputation as a fluent speaker. The auditorium at the graded school will no doubt be filled to hear this man in whom the general public has such confidence.

The regular monthly parent's meeting of all the patrons of the Tabor graded school will be held again on Friday afternoon, October 13th. These meetings are of much benefit to the faculty as well as to the patrons. All grievances of any kind in regard to the school are brought up at these meetings and never discussed elsewhere. It is indeed gratifying to know that these meetings are always largely attended.

All the teachers and pupils of the school here have caught the spirit necessary to carry out successfully the programme expected of them for the big rally day to be held at Chadbourn on the 27th of this month. Tabor graded school will be represented not only by a large number of children but already parents on every side have stated that they expect to be on hand. The girls of the Tabor graded school, high school department, will give a demonstration of floor work in physical training for girls, which will be a picturesque sight—dressed in their suits of blue and white.

Prof. W. J. Justus, superintendent of the Tabor graded school, has a very able faculty assisting him in the very splendid work now in progress. The spirit so far exhibited by the entire teaching force is the kind that counts and already this same spirit may be seen in the attitude of the children. The faculty consists of the following teachers: Louis Formu Duval, first grade; Pennie Williamson, second grade; Vera Corley, A. B., third grade; Marie Cunningham, A. B., fourth and fifth grades; Juanita Newton (Trinity), sixth and seventh grades; Marguerite Scarborough, A. B., and Prof. W. J. Justus, A. B., high school department; and Lorena Newton, graduate Southern Conservatory of Music, instrumental music.

The seventh annual session of the Tabor Sunday school conference will be held at Bethesda church, Saturday, October 14th, 10 o'clock. Prof. W. J. Justus, of Tabor, is on for the morning address and Hon. J. A. Brown, of Chadbourn, for the afternoon address. This conference promises to be the most interesting of any to this date.

Anderson, S. C., Oct. 7.—Taking advantage of heavier players for plungers through their opponent's line, as well as working forward passes and end runs, the Georgia University eleven defeated Clemson's team 26 to 0 here today. The Crackers also showed well in running interference.

OFFICER PURSUED BY NEGRO HE WAS TRYING TO ARREST

Policeman Herbert Smith Tells Weird Story at Police Headquarters.

There are records at Police Headquarters of negroes complaining of being followed by black cats, but last night was the first time that a negro has followed an officer, while the latter was trying to arrest him. Such, however, was the story told by Policeman Herbert Smith at police headquarters.

It is alleged that when the officer went to "pinch" a colored gentleman down near the water front, the latter drew his "razzer" and calmly announced that he was a free tax-paying citizen, and was not going to allow anybody to arrest him.

Still flourishing the razor, the negro strolled down the street in the direction of the Union station, followed by the officer. Every time he sought to catch up with him the negro kept his distance, at the same time addressing the office with a choice collection of descriptive adjectives, that for their vividness and originality, were never before equalled in Wilmngton.

Failing to find anyone to help him coop the bad "nigger" the officer began to retrace his steps, and to his surprise found that his quarry was calmly following in his wake. When Mr. Bluecoat paused, Mr. Coon did likewise. Finally the officer returned to his starting point, closely followed by the negro, still addressing him in endearing terms.

After airing his views of the officer to the Cape Fear river, the clock on the Federal buildings, and the world in general, the ebony razor artist went his way in peace. Before going, however, he informed the officer that he would drop around to the hall, and have the officer discharged for interfering with a tax paying citizen. However, at a late hour last night, he had not made good his threat.

JUNIOR RALLY WILL BE BIG FEATURE OF MEETING.

Christian Endeavor Convention at Wallace Promises to be Big Event.

The Junior rally of the Christian Endeavor convention of the Wilmington district at Wallace, October 9th and 10th, promises to be very interesting as well as instructive. It will be in the form of a model Junior meeting and will be led by the Juniors themselves. The sash system will be fully explained, as well as the golden chain and string of pearls systems, and anyone wishing to have a live Junior society should attend this rally, which will be held Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

The programme for the Senior meetings has already been announced in this paper. The topics are live, the speakers are "live", and everyone is urged to take advantage of this opportunity. There will be from 20 to 25 Endeavorers to go from Wilmington.

After Traffic Violators.

Policeman A. L. Long has been equipped with a brand new, 1917 Harley-Davidson motorcycle and has been commissioned to look more carefully after traffic violators. He will be used principally in running down speeders and in looking after the law as to automobiles carrying front and rear lights. Later he will look after violations of the headlight glare ordinance recently passed.

The Standard of Value and Quality

Do You Know of a Better Investment?

If you were entirely satisfied that a certain high grade security would substantially increase in value during the next sixty days—would you purchase it?

Yes?

Well, then, why not consider the Paige Fairfield "Six-46" in precisely the same light?

It is only a matter of weeks now before the price of this famous model will be increased.

Do you know of any better way to invest $1375 with absolute certainty of profits in money and personal satisfaction?

As you know, the costs of material and labor have jumped skyward during the past year. To meet this condition, we must charge more for our product—because we positively refuse to sacrifice quality no matter what the commodity prices may be.

So, as a clean-cut business proposition, can you afford to overlook such a rare opportunity?

Remember, the Paige Company challenges any manufacturer in the industry to produce a car—within three hundred dollars of the Paige price—which offers as much luxury, comfort and all around dependability as the Fairfield "Six-46". This challenge stands uncontested.

LOCAL CHEESE INDUSTRY

May be Developed in Wilmington Through Establishment of a Central Milk Distributing Station

That the movement now on foot to change the present system of marketing and distributing milk in Wilmington and vicinity from the haphazard and wasteful methods pursued by the individual producer to that of a central milk station will eventually result in the manufacture of butter and cheese here on a large scale, is the belief of many persons here who have been watching the high prices for which these products are now selling.

While the plans made by Mr. A. G. Warren for the establishment of a central milk station only include the manufacture of butter and cottage cheese, the materializing of his plans which now appear most favorable, will undoubtedly result in not only in increasing production of milk in this vicinity, which is at present very slack, but will also afford a ready market for milk produced in the adjoining counties which now has only a very limited market here. With the enlargement of the dairy herds, there will be a surplus of milk, which with the prevailing high prices for cheese, can most profitably be manufactured into a produce which may be held a long time and disposed of when desired.

A government expert has declared that the cheese manufactured in North Carolina is equivalent to that which comes from Wisconsin and New York, the principal cheese states of the Nation, and the department looks to the North Carolina mountain farmers to find a prosperity from this industry throughout the section adapted to the work. They are finding an eager market, since the quality of their product is good, and are far from having to leave the State to find an outlet for their goods. They make the regular American cheese which has been coming from Wisconsin and New York.

That the industry proved profitable from the beginning, appealing to the farmers because of the good prices available, is indicated by the fact that up to date six additional plants have been erected or are now being erected. Shares are sold to the people in amounts as they have available. The plants at the present time are confined chiefly to the counties of Ashe, Watauga and Yancey. Over in Tennessee plants have been built in Sevier and Johnson counties, while plans have just been made for starting the industry in the mountains of Virginia.

Not only are additional plants being installed, bringing the total up to nine, but the three plants which were established and in operation last year, on which the government made a glowing report, have been practically doubled. They will be run the entire year round.

The government's purpose is to foster the gradual growth of this industry until the farmers are in condition to operate on a large scale. At the beginning it was desirable to use only the surplus milk, and then later to enlarge the herds of dairy cattle as convenient. Already the farmers are beginning to save their heifers. The government experts have not found it necessary even to urge this work upon the farmers of the mountain counties. More requests have come from the farmers than could be answered.

The one man who has been giving his time to this work has more than he can do. With the additional man their time will be well employed. They give instructions and answer questions and help to organize the farmers. The cheese-making plants have proven to be splendid methods for securing co-operation and the work of organization is not difficult.

Especially when the profits are noted do the people who have the chance to enter this work do so eagerly. Two factories last year averaged profits of $1,500 apiee. Estimates are made that the average cost per pound to the manufacturer is three cents. The average price of it is seventeen cents a pound. These factories last year made eleven pounds of cheese to 100 pounds of milk.

THIRD WHITE SLAVERY CASE

District Attorney Carr Will Appear at Elizabeth City Tuesday in Case of United States vs. Dell.

One of the most important and interesting cases which District Attorney J. O. Carr will have to prosecute at the session of the United States District Court which convenes Tuesday morning for the trial of criminal cases at Elizabeth City with Judge H. G. Connor of Wilson, presiding, will be that of the United States against Francis L. Dell, charged with white slavery. Although Mr. Carr has been in office a very short time, this will make the third white slavery case in which he has appeared for the Government.

In the case against M. C. White, recently tried at Laurinburg, the defendant received a sentence of 18 months in the Federal penetentiary at Atlanta, while the case against another man at the same term of court was quashed when it was developed that the defendant had walked with the girl from Dillon, S. C., to Rockingham, N. C., and thus had not violated the provisions of the Mann Act, which only applies where a person has used interstate common carriers or railways for transportation.

In the case against Dell, the defendant, a traveling salesman, of Newark, N. J., the defendant is charged with having sent a telegram to Mrs. Loretta McKernan, of Washington, D. C., the wife of Mr. L. W. McKernan, of that city, and it is also alleged that he furnished her money to buy a ticket from Washington to Edenton, N. C., where they registered as man and wife at a hotel for the purpose of engaging in immoral practices ,according to the charges preferred.

Dell claims he sent the woman money to go to her mother and was simply befriending her, because her husband was unkind to her. Mr. McKernan, who is warehouseman for the Kann's Department Store in Washington, missed his wife on the night of September 5th, 1916, and had her trailed to Edenton. He is the prosecuting witness in the case and has furnished the local District Attorney's office with many newspaper clippings concerning his wife's relations with the defendant. Mrs. McKernan is about 29 years of age and the mother of two children.

GOLDSBORO ALDERMEN HAVE BOUGHT A "BLACK MARIAH."

City in Best Financial Condition in Many Years.

(Special Star Correspondence.)

Goldsboro, N. C., Oct. 7.—Upon the recommendation of the local police committee, the board of aldermen have directed the purchase of an automobile police patrol wagon for conveying prisoners to the city hall. Recently several people who indulge in "spirits" have formed a habit of hanging around the southern part of the city and "tanking up" on anything from "monkey rum" up, but owing to the distance from the city hall the police have found it difficult to preserve the proper order among this element, which was mainly responsible for the recommendation of the police committee to purchase a "Black Mariah", which will no doubt come in very handy in handling Sunday drunks and other disturbers of the peace.

Financially, Goldsboro is in the best circumstances the city has enjoyed for many years, while the finance committee have reported $28,000 as amount of taxes paid in during the month of September, which is considered a record-breaker.

Peace and Prosperity is well worth a contribution to the Wilson Fund.

Annual Meeting at Calvary.

The annual meeeting of the members of Calvary Baptist church will be held at the close of the night service today. The first part of the service will be shortened in order that the congregation may not be detained until a late hour. At this service the election of officers for all the organizations of the church will take place. Plans for the work of the coming year will be outlined. The Lord's Supper will be observed at this service. It is earnestly urged that every member of the church be present.

"America First" the right spirit; contribute to the Wilson Campaign Fund.

Dignity and Splendor the Keynote of Winter Fashions - The Touch of Gold Transforms a Black Gown - Sumptuous Fabrics That Might Be Woven of Cloth of Gold Yet Have Light and Clinging Qualities.

IT is to be a golden season. Any of the openings that are drawing femininity from far and near, from the great stone palaces of upper Fifth avenue, from the even greater stone apartment houses that flank street after street of the west side, from cosy stucco homes in the suburbs of Westchester, the North Shore, the Oranges—it is a golden season that women come to consider and enthuse over and plan for.

The costumes themselves foretell it in their rich hues of bronze and brown with ruddy dashes of autumn color; in their neutral tones brightened by gold embroideries or rows of the fashionable stitching done with silk thread, in their creamy whites with gold lace and in their airy blacks, also with gold lace and great golden roses to give the accentuating touch. And these golden costumes are displayed against backgrounds that bring them out to perfection; against rugs and draperies of goldan tones, or black with weird Chinese figures in dull gold. Great golden chrysanthemums, vivid nasturtiums and pale tea roses stand about in jars of brass or jugs of Rookwood pottery. It all makes a picture that one will not soon forget; this promise of the Midas season of 1916. Away back in the fifteenth century a king of France spread his golden carpet, the Field of the Cloth of Gold, to do homage to an English king. In this twentieth century year it is the French coutouriere, who spreads the Field of the Cloth of Gold for the entrancement of women the world over, and perhaps the splendor of this season will go down in the annals of dress as an unforgettable season, just as the exploit of Francis the First has become an unforgettable happening in history.

Golden Tones Even In Street Costume.

Glance at the windows of the big shops, these days, and you will note the preponderance of brown and gold tones in tailored garb. Stunning suits of copper brown, chocolate brown, coffee brown cloth have silk stitching in gold thread, embroidered motifs done with gold floss and the touch of beaver or skunk fur that brings out the color scheme. Brown velvet hats accompany these tailleurs, or black hats with unique ornaments of gold lace or beads; even the smart walking boots are of tabasco brown glazed kid; or of black kid with buttoned tops in the fashionable tabasco color.

But it is with evening gowns we have to deal today, fascinating as the fall tailored models are; and in evening gowns particularly has Paris found opportunity to revel in golden gleams and glints. The Midas touch is everywhere, in wonderful gold laces, in gold-embroidered tissues, in sumptuous brocades that look as though they could stand by their own weight yet are astonishingly light and soft to the touch. There are brocades for evening wraps combining mammoth gold roses and black velvet grounds in such patterns as were never seen before and there are gold tissues as fine and soft as chiffon itself. Gold tulle there is, also, to float about the shoulders in scarf fashion or in layer upon layer in filmy dance frocks.

Some of the jeweled and spangled trimmings shown for new evening frocks are Oriental in suggestion and are so heavy that, used on a dance frock of tulle or net, they must be supported by featherbone hoops run into the material. Street skirts grow longer and straighter in line, but there is no evidence of this in evening costume; dance skirts are fluffy, billowy affairs and are almost as short as ever—not longer at least, than the top of a buttoned kid dancing boot, and well above the silk-clad ankle when dancing slippers are worn. And by the bye, golden silk stockings and slippers of black glazed kid are a particularly smart combination with semi-formal gowns for indoor wear.

For the bodice of the winter evening gown, one requires a yard or two of tulle and several yards of gold lace, or spangled trimming, the latter to be made into shoulder straps and a band going around the figure under the armpits. Over this band is a swathing of tulle, and the shoulder-straps serve to hold up the whole—if one may call such an apology for a bodice a "whole." Of course, the structure of tulle and shoulder-straps is draped over a carefully fitted foundation, for the waistline must be small and trim this season, in evening gowns at least. Featherbone woven girdelin, which is shaped to the figure and fits exquisitely into the curve of the waistline makes an excellent foundation for a draped evening bodice.

Stomachers In Jeweled Effect.

In the bands of rich fabric which form the upper part of many new evening bodices there is opportunity for use of splendid fabrics. There are almost-made bodices on display in the trimming departments; affairs of hand-run net and lace, or of gold embroidered tissue with shoulder-straps attached, all ready to be added to several yards of tulle—and behold! One has a fashionable dance frock. Hawaiian fringes of ostrich are another trimming for the evening gown. The craze that has spread over the country for Hula dances and Hawaiian songs played on the ukulele ("u-ka-lay-le" as the natives of Hawaii pronounce it), has found expression in costume and new evening gowns are trimmed with double-looped feather fringes. Jenny started this fad and a picture of one of Jenny's feather-fringed frocks is shown on today's page. This costume is made of gold-colored soiree silk and the ostrich fringes match in tone. The pleated silk tunics are faced with an inch or two of stiffening so that they swing and sway with each movement of the wearer, displaying the delicate ostrich fringe to advantage. The bodice has a deep fitted girdle and a little bolero of the golden soiree silk and gold tulle is draped over bust and shoulders.

Black Velvet And Gold.

Nothing shows off gold fabric like black velvet; and vice versa. Doucet has brought out a dance frock of black panne velvet with pointed, looped tunic over a petticoat of gold lace, and draped panne bodice over yoke and sleeve-puffs of gold lace. At the girdle is a golden rose. A brilliant gown pictured, is of black velvet striped with gold tissue. If the skirt suggests a striped sport garment it is none the less authoritative as an example of new evening costume. And note its new length to the instep—a few very exclusive, ultra gowns are in this length. The bodice is made of gold lace and gold-colored ribbon, and a gold tissue rose nestles in a band of black fur at the waistline.

Another black evening gown pictured shows gold bead and jet embroidery on black tulle. The embroidered skirt hangs in straight lines, but over it floats an Oriental sort of dancing skirt, several yards in width and distended by featherbone tubing hidden under a trimming of sequins. There is a flaring tulle peplum distended in the same fashion at the hip. The finishing touch on this costume is a bar pin of gold and topaz, which fastens one of the tulle shoulder-straps.

Very splendid truly, is the opera gown of gold-colored velvet draped in cascade effect below the hips, the velvet trailing down to merge with the folds of gold-colored tulle that form a short train. This gold tulle starts at the shoulder in short sleeve drapery, is drawn to the waistline, where the tulle forms a butterfly sash-bow, and then flows downward over the skirt in loops and folds to make the train. Superb is the stomacher ornament of amber and crystal beads which accomplishes a bodice front, with long fringes that hang over the skirt.

Gold and white evening gowns are replacing the silver and white models that were the rage this summer. There is an opulence about the gold and white gown that makes it more suitable for winter than the moonlight gleam of white and silver, which was so exquisite on a summer night. The gold and white dance frock pictured is from Beer. The floating tunic of white tulle is embroidered with a delicate design in gold thread at the corners and beneath is a skirt of silver lace. The fitted bodice is of white satin with embroidery of gold beads, crystal and jet.

Flamingo red and nasturtium yellow have come in with the favor for gold. A wonderful new evening gown for a young matron is of flamingo red chiffon velvet with tulle of the same shade.

Eternal Vigilance is the Price of Beauty

ONE cannot be lazy and possess beautiful hair—unless Nature has been very, very generous in her gift of naturally luxuriant, wavy, fluffy tresses; and not to one woman in a hundred is Nature thus kind. Ordinary heads of hair require regular and unremitting attention to look their best; many heads of hair require such attention to look well at all; but no feature of beauty responds more quickly and satisfactorily to the right sort of care than the tresses that—uncared for—are too often woman's chief detriment rather than her rightful crown of beauty.

If ever there is a time when the hair needs special attention, that time is the autumn. Summer suns, summer winds and summer seas have done their utmost to spoil the beauty of the locks. It is difficult, too, to shampoo the hair properly while one is sojourning at a summer hotel—one is apt to put off the boring task from day to day; a net holds the recalitrant locks by evening, and a kindly sport hat covers them up by day. The fortnightly shampoo is neglected in the interest of other, more enlivening pursuits—and the poor hair does suffer pitifully from this neglect.

The first thing to do, when taking one's hair in hand—as one might put it—for the winter, is to make it thoroughly clean. The second thing is to have it singed, for there is nothing like a treatment of singeing for several consecutive weeks, to bring back vigor to the hair and make it begin to grow and acquire a live, rich bloom and gloss. The gloss of dead or dying hair is quite different—that comes from an accumulation of oil that ought to be nourishing the roots instead of distributing itself over the surface. Have the ends of the hair singed, once a week for four weeks and the broken, split hair will begin to grow and the oily secretion will keep in the scalp where it belongs.

But the singeing is not enough; one must nourish the scalp with a tonic—and if the hair is very dry and lifeless, with a good cream also. Every hair shop carries two sorts of tonic; one rich with oil for dry, chippy hair full of dandruff; and the other carrying less oil and more alcohol for the sleek, oily sort of hair that clings to the head and separates into unsightly strings instead of fluffing in a soft cloud about the face. Do not be too sure your hair has no dandruff because there is no evidence of the fine white dust when the brush is used. The sort of dandruff that clings like moist wax to the scalp is quite as injurious to the hair as the dry, fly-about kind, and it is even harder to remove.

First, for the thorough shampoo. The practice of softening the shampoo water with soda or ammonia cannot be too strongly condemned. Such a shampoo does get the hair beautifully clean and it does make it beautifully fluffy; but after a day or two the fluffiness disappears and a distressing lank limpness takes its place. Strong alkalis also tend to fade the hair and make it gray before its time. Of course, the ideal water for hair-washing is rainwater fresh from the skies, but only women living in the country can revel in this luxury. With all its modern conveniences the city apartment fails to provide rainwater for toilet purposes and it is impossible to catch enough rainwater without a gutter and drain arrangement on the roof, for a satisfactory shampoo. So one must be content with the water that comes from a faucet in the bath room, thankful the while that it is ready to hand, piping hot and in plentiful supply. Shave up pure castile soap in paper-thin slabs until you have half a cupful, and pour over the mass a pint of boiling hot water. Strain into a small bowl into which you can dip your hand easily. Wet the hair thoroughly with warm water so the soap will not stick and then with the palm of the hand apply the dissolved soap, rubbing briskly until the whole head is covered with thick lather. With the ends of the fingers and nails go over every bit of the scalp, loosening any dandruff that may have adhered to the roots of the hair. Then rinse the hair three—four—even five times until it is perfectly clean and you get a silky, squeaking sound when the fingers are drawn firmly over it. This is proof positive that it is absolutely clean.

Constant Brushing Ventilates And Cleans The Hair.

Use a hot towel first in the drying process; then a fan, and finally comb the hair, from side to side, back from the forehead, and forward from the nape of the neck. Keep the hair always in motion until perfectly dry, so that it will be light and fluffy and soft.

Apply the tonic every other night for two weeks. If your hair requires the oil tonic, the shampoo will have to be repeated once a week; if the less oily tonic is used, once a fortnight will be sufficient for a shampoo. And every night give the hair fifty strokes with a good, stiff brush; long, firm strokes that go in one sweep from root to end. After the brushing, toss the hair lightly with the fingers so that it springs up from the head; then braid it loosely and retire for the night. Never sleep with the hair done in a knot with hairpins, or tied tightly with a ribbon or elastic. The perfume cap worn at night is bad for the growth and health of the hair, though such a cap may be worn for an hour during the morning. But a better way to perfume the hair is to shake orris into it before the nightly brushing and then let the long strokes carry away the excess of powder.

Let the hair have a thorough sunning and airing once a week. This is one good thing that summer does for the hair; in winter it gets precious little fresh air or sun, coiled under a velvet hat or a fur cap whenever one steps out of doors. Sit in a sunny window with your book or your sewing, one morning a week, leaving your hair spread out over your shoulders. You will be surprised how much improved it will be in quality and color, for there is nothing like sunshine to bring out glints of gold in tresses that appear dull-hued in a darkened room.

Very dry brittle hair may be treated to a little brilliantine when a specially careful coiffure is being made. The hair, first shampooed to beautiful fluffiness, is waved in large, loose waves, either with patent curlers, hot irons, or the tedious water-wave process which is worth while because it gives the most natural effect of all. Then with a clean tooth-brush dip up a very little brilliantine and pass the brush lightly over the waves. Arrange the hair immediately and put on a net to keep the waves from falling out of place. The hair should have a burnished appearance as though it had been brushed for hours till every hair gave out a glint of soft light.

Gentle Appliances Of Oil With A Tiny Brush Will Nourish The Enfeebled Roots.

DEMOCRATIC RALLY IN ANSON GREATEST EVER

Bickett Tells of the Immortal Quartet of Nation's Wizards.

(Special Star Telegram.)

Wadesboro, N. C., Oct. 7.—This day—one month before the general election—will be long remembered by the people of Anson county as one of the greatest Democratic rallies in the history of Anson politics. The spacious court room was filled with a most attentive audience representing every section of the county and every class and condition of the people, besides a number of citizens from Union, Richmond and Stanley counties.

Promptly at 2 o'clock Dr. W. J. McLendon addressed the audience and in a brief but forceful speech, appealing to every Democrat of the county and the few Republicans to roll up a large and unanimous vote for Anson's candidate for Congress, he introduced Mr. L. D. Robinson, as the next Congressman from the Seventh district.

Mr. Robinson in a most feeling manner briefly recounted his public career and spoke his appreciation of the honors Anson county had bestowed upon him, assuring her citizens that he would be faithful to the trust about to be reposed in him as their representative in the National Congress. In his 12-minute address he did not speak of State issues, but proved to the audience that Mr. Hughes, the Republican candidate for President, was not a big enough man to fill the position. He gave as proof of the small caliber shown by Mr. Hughes his injection of sectional questions into the campaign. He exclaimed, "from the constructive and remedial legislation while the South is in control of National affairs, isn't it a pity they were held out of the saddle so long?" He recounted the activities of the opposing party in the district and showed the vital necessity of every Democrat being registered and voting in the general election.

He then introduced Hon. Thos. W. Bickett, saying that Mr. Bickett has made a reputation all over the State as an orator equal to the silver tongued Immortal Aycock.

Although Mr. Bickett was suffering from a strained voice, he fully sustained his reputation in a two-hour and ten minute address full of reason, logic and convincing argument. One could not but wish that his audience was composed of men in opposition to his views, that he might see them converted under his spell of oratory. In speaking of the Seventh district, he said: "Every Republican in Wilkes, Davie, Yadkin, Davidson and Randolph will do his duty on November 7th. The majority with which Mr. Robinson will go in will depend upon whether every Democrat in Union, Anson, Montgomery, Scotland, Richmond, Hoke, Lee and Moore, does his duty."

Speaking of National issues, Mr. Bickett said that nothing in the fundamental principles of the Republican party is progressive. Republicans say stand. Democrats say move up. Progressives say run. If any are of a progressive spirit they will find their nearest ideal in the Democratic party and in the leadership of that greatest of all progressives, Woodrow Wilson.

His most telling argument was what he termed the story of the four wise men, showing the powerful recruits the Democratic party has gained in the advocacy of their leader and his wise administration, naming Thomas A. Edison, the wizard of electricity; Luther Burbank, the wizard of plant life; Charles W. Eliot, the dean of the educational world, and Henry Ford, the manufacturing genius of the age, calling these the immortal quartette of the country's wizards.

Touching upon the foreign policy of Wilson's administration, he recounted the great and perplexing questions that confronted him, saying that great newspapers of the country owned in Europe and by those with enormous Mexican holdings had created a spirit at home and abroad belittling the diplomacy of our Nation but only for a season. He said somewhere in the Book it is said they came to scoff but remained to pray. Wilson's scoffers are now on their knees.

Mr. Bickett's description of Mr. Harding's speech at Wrightsville to the Bar Association, in which he described, Secretary McAdoo's ultimatum to New York bankers in July, 1914, and diverted the greatest panic the world has ever known, was dramatic in the extreme.

Mr. Bickett said that he had been accused of running from State issues. His reason for dwelling on National rather than on State issues and not talking about the Republican record in North Carolina was because he preferred to speak of nice things. He could not talk of that record without soiling his speech. He said he would not say anything about the Republicans in North Carolina but would quote what Republicans say about them. His first quotation, Mr. Taft: "A North Carolina Republican is an appetite for Federal office." Judge Bynum: "Republicans, forever at war, never at peace and forever in the pockets of the people." He quoted Butler's definition and then said that until the Republicans of North Carolina repudiate the leadership of 1868 and every one who apologizes for that leadership, they will never demand respect. After drawing a beautiful picture of North Carolina, as one great family, with Democracy as its head looking after its health, its happiness, its education, its indigent, and showing that this was done at the minimum cost, the speaker concluded his address in a burst of eloquence that fixed him in the hearts of all of his hearers.

El Paso, Texas, Oct. 7.—General Venustiano Carranza may not be a candidate for the presidency of Mexico at the first election to be held by the de facto government, J. J. Pesquiera, Carranza consul at Los Angeles, Cal., declared today upon his arrival from Mexico City, en route to Los Angeles.

DEMOCRATIC PARTY IS UNITED FOR PASSAGE OF PROGRESSIVE LAWS

tions are in the sharpest contrast with those that I have mentioned.

Old Guard in Control.

"And then back of all, quiet, self-confident, knowing the game better than anybody else, sit the men who really have the organization and control of the Republican party in their own possession—the old guard—the men who at any rate afford us this advantage of controversy: We know where to find them. They are always in the same place. They always intend the same thing. They always have the same—I was about to say ideals, but I will not misuse a handsome word—the same conception of what politics is for, and who know, to make a well known quotation, 'exactly what they want.'

"Now we know the alliances of these gentlemen; we know what they intend, nothing but control to their own advantage and that the people of the United States, when they inervene in their affairs, are regarded as guilty of an impertinence.

Would Possess Government.

"They want possession of the government. They want control of the treasury of the United States. They want direction of the business of the United States. They want the termination of the foreign connections and policies of the United States. They want possession of the legislation of the United States in order that the comfortable partnerships, four years ago broken up, may be restored.

"It is one of the most sinister combinations that American politics ever saw and, I may add, one of the least intelligent.

"So it seems to me that the independent voter has a perfectly plain proposition before him. Does he want to discontinue the liberal and peaceful policies of the present administration and substitute in their stead the probably hostile, the probably warlike and the inevitably reactionary policies of the opposition?

"And one of the things that threaten us in the future, if the Republican party is successful, is a conflict between capital and labor not because any new lines will be drawn, but because so far so many representatives of capital have refused to regard the laborer as a fellow human being.

Ideals of America.

"We were born to prefer justice to power, humanity to any form of selfish achievement. We raised up, as we have raised up in effigy in the harbor of New York, an image of Liberty, enlightening the world showing a path of luminous light across the waters which we said if men would follow it would lead them to a land of justice, to a land of brotherly love, to a land where men co-operated because they believed in each other's rights; to a land where no man sought to be another man's master, but where all men were united together in a like comradeship and affection.

"These are the ideals of America and there are the ideals which will settle the election of 1916."

Children's School Hose

In Buster Brown hose we are offering an unusual value considering conditions in hosiery for children when most of the well known makes of children's hose have advanced their prices we are maintaining the Buster Brown, of which there is no better, at the old price, 25c per pair. A complete assortment of weights and colors are assembled for your immediate choosing. How long we will be able to maintain the 25c price is contingent upon the manufacturers' quotation to us, and as bills are marked "price changed without notice on account of existing conditions," so while we are holding Buster Brown hose at 25c today, we cannot assure you of any definite length of time that they will be priced so low.

EVENTS OF A WEEK IN AND ABOUT LUMBERTON

Flour Has Been Much Higher Since Civil War Than Now.

Court May Continue Through This Week—Buffalo Bill's Show Coming. Change in Lighting Rates. Political Speaking.

(Special Star Correspondence.)

Lumberton, N. C., Oct. 7.—During the past few days a number of papers have carried headlines announcing the fact that flour was now higher than it had been since the "War Between the States." That may apply to some sections, but not to the Lumberton section. The Star correspondent has seen flour sell at $18.00 per barrel on the corner now occupied by the Lumberton barber shop. We are in a position to give the name of a gentleman who paid Godwin & McQueen $25 cash for two barrels of flour. Jenkins & Caldwell sold a relative a barrel of flour for $13.50 while the regular price was $15.00.

Those prices prevailed under President Grant's administration and he had about as much to do with regulating prices as President Wilson has now. In those days corn sold here as high as $2.00 per bushel and the laborer who could get a half bushel of corn per day for his work thought he was doing extra fine. No trouble to get a man to split rails, cut cord wood, grub new ground or do any kind of labor for four pounds of meat for the day's work. In those days the farmers sold three dozen eggs for 25 cents, while now they receive 30 cents for one dozen. The farmers then bought Western corn and Western bacon at $2.00 per bushel, and 25 cents per pound. Now the farmer sells his bacon at his own price if he wants to sell at all, while he sells corn at $1.00 per bushel. Cotton sold at 25 cents per pound, while cotton cloth, calico, etc., sold for 25 cents per yard. The person who is quoting flour prices of the present day should investigate a little further back. He could find where common stick candy sold for 40 cents per pound, and candle crackers for 20 cents per pack.

Superior court, which began last Monday, will probably continue until the middle of next week. The work of the court is going on satisfactorily, much business being disposed of. All our people have become so much attached to Judge Winston, who is presiding over this term, that it will cause genuine regret when the time comes for him to visit Robeson no more as judge. We are not saying what it is, but the judge has a good one up his sleeve, connected in no way with politics or holding office.

There was some kind of a storm hit Lumberton yesterday, caused by what the mayor and town commissioners did do or did not do Thursday night at their monthly meeting. The Star man did not feel like being out much during the day, and when he tried to get a little fresh air on the porch, in ten minutes time no less than five gentlemen called to ask for information regarding the lowering and raising the prices of water and lights by the town authorities. They said it had been understood all the time that when the new lighting system was installed lights would be cheaper but instead they had gone up. The Star man, who at times feels sorry of the fact, as a member of the board of commissioners, and honestly thought that the current would be cheaper, but learned to his amazement, after voting for the adoption of a schedule of rates used elsewhere, that while the minimum charges had been cut down the rate to larger consumers had been increased. If the old town plant lived at its high cost of production, we can't see why consumers should pay more for the current when it costs no more than one-half what it cost the town to produce it. The mayor says try it out for 60 days, and then if it is not necessary to charge scale adopted cut rates down. The writer, speaking for himself, is satisfied a mistake has been made so far as light rates are concerned.

Mr. Olin Edens resigned his position as salesman with Messrs. White & Gough last Monday, after being with them for eight years to the day. Mr. Edens left his position to enter into business for himself and will be associated with Mr. R. C. Birmingham, the style of the firm being "The Lumberton Fruit and Produce Company." These gentlemen are both well known to all our people and we bespeak for them a liberal share of the trade in their line.

Mr. S. N. Ferguson, of Bladenboro, was here Thursday, and while in conversation with him he stated that from two acres of land, without using any fertilizer of any kind, he gathered 50 bushels of wheat. Mr. Ferguson thinks that the farmers should plant more wheat and many of them would in a large measure decrease the cost of their flour. Take his case for example, he has wheat enough to make flour for his family for a long time and then some to spare.

Mr. A. E. Sikes, of Wilmington, arrived last night and began work as a salesman in the grocery department of White & Gough's big department store this morning. Mr. Sikes is an expert in the grocery business, and the firm is fortunate in securing his services. Mr. Sikes will remove his family, wife and two children, to Lumberton a little later.

Without any reflection on any piano players who have played at the Pastime theatre during the past five years, the music heard there these evenings from 7:30 to 9:30 by Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Carlyle, surpasses all previous efforts. With Mrs. Carlyle at the piano and Mr. Carlyle playing the violin, with good pictures to look at, every care must soon be forgotten. There is a treat in store Monday for patrons of the Pastime, as on that day "Favlewa" the incomparable, will be presented in "The Dumb Girl of Portici," a nine-reel masterpiece. Show will open Monday at 2:30, and the prices will be 10 and 20 cents.

Last Monday when court adjourned at noon the Republicans had a speaking in the court house, Mr. Sewell, of Carthage, being the speaker. About the time everything got to going good Billy Clifford's Lady Band, on parade, stopped at the corner of the court house yard to give a concert. When the music began everybody in the court house forgot speaking and everything else but that music, and soon swelled the crowd in the street. The charge was made that this was done to try to break up the speaking, but the manager of the theatre who was directing the parade, declares most emphatically that he positively knew nothing about the speaking until he was told that the band had broken up the meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Thompson were called to Oxford Wednesday night on account of the death of Mr. John Haskins, an uncle of Mrs. Thompson.

A recital will be given by the expression department of the Lumberton graded school, under the direction of Miss Irene McLeod, professor of this department, at the Pastime theatre next Friday evening at 8 o'clock. The new auditorium not yet being completed, the manager of the Pastime kindly offered the theatre for the accommodation of the students. All who attend will be well repaid for the visit.

Buffalo Bill's bill posting car was here Tuesday putting up paper announcing the coming of the big show to Lumberton on Tuesday, October 17th. If the weather is good it is expected that a record-breaking crowd from this and surrounding counties will be here. Next Tuesday the second advertising brigade will be here. The car manager who was here Monday, is one of the cleverest showmen we ever met, but he is a Tar Heel, Edenton being his home, a Mr. Harrel by name. He has been in the business 26 years, was in Lumberton 20 years ago. Nearly everything but the old cemetery was new to him.

The Star man has not been appointed on any committee to convey to the parents the information that some of the 15 to 18 years old daughters of Lumberton, just a small number of them, should be severely reprimanded for the language they throw around some times. Truth is, it sounds bad to hear girls throwing away "damns," etc. And then what about the grown up young men, married and single, who attend Sunday school and church in the forenoon and go fishing in the afternoon? We remember in times gone by, when a Lumberton man went fishing on Sunday ,taking his little son with him. They spent the day on the river, the child crying to come home. He was seized with fever that day and a few days later was laid to rest in the cemetery. The father in the meantime was stricken with fever and could not attend his child's funeral. We never see that little grave but that we think of fishing on Sunday.

A class of orphans from the Oxford Orphan Asylum will give an entertainment in the opera house Monday evening, beginning at 7:30 o'clock. By a strange coincidence, a class of colored orphans from Winston, are advertised for St. John's colored Baptist church on the same night.

The Star correspondent has had in the past, two uncles who wanted office bad enough to let their names appear on the Republican ticket, and their whole family generation, father and brothers, voted against them. They were defeated, overwhelmingly, and relatives helped do it. We do not feel disgraced because they ran on that ticket. They saw differently from what we do, and probably thought they saw themselves in office. It comes with poor grace, as we see it, to slur at a young man because his father, who could neither read nor write, voted the Republican ticket. It's small, indeed.

Mr. Frank Gough, Robeson's next State senator, will open his campaign Tuesday night in Britt's township. The county campaign proper will probably open on the 16th, the day on which Sheriff Lewis will begin his first round collecting taxes. There is one man on the Republican county ticket who should be given something as he at one time served the county as a Democratic county commissioner, at least a man of the same name did, and that same man is still living though well advanced in years.

The Planters Bank & Trust Co., which began business the first of April, this year, is rapidly coming to the front as one of the strong financial institutions of this section. At the close of business September 12, it had on deposit $96,784. Rapid growth for the first six months of its existence, but nothing else could be expected with its clever, popular and efficient officials.

Mr. Earl Townsend, who returned from a business college last week and went to work within two hours after reaching home, was soon offered a much better position and is now with the First National Bank. Mr. Hugh McAllister generally knows a good thing when he sees it.

Cotton receipts here yesterday were the heaviest of the season, 130 bales having come in, the price being 16 5-8. Lumberton is 300 or 400 bales behind the same time last season, but the cotton is not in the country.

Last week four cases of diphtheria and one case of scarlet fever were reported in town, but all soon recovered, the disease readily yielding to treatment. One suspect was reported yesterday. General health conditions in this section continue Double A.

Godwin and McCaskill are advertised to speak here next Thursday at 2 p. m. The show will be free and everybody is invited.

Two carloads of ice came in from Wilmington yesterday morning, one for each house. Some wagons were hauling ice while others were hauling coal.

It seems to the writer that here is one of the best openings for an up-to-date electrician to be found anywhere. A man who knows the business should investigate. W. S. W.

CAN'T DENY IT

If This Had Happened Elsewhere Instead of Wilmington You Might Doubt It.

The average man is a doubter. This is not surprising — the public have been humbugged so frequently they are skeptical. Proof like the following will stand investigation. It cannot be disputed.

C. E. Wood, policeman, 514 N. Third St., Wilmington, says: "I used to be troubled a good deal by my kidneys, but not since using Doan's Kidney Pills. My kidney action is regular now and my health is perfectly sound. I used to be nervous and restless and couldn't sleep well, but now my nerves are all right and I can sleep good. Whenever my kidneys cause me a little trouble, I take Doan's Kidney Pills and a few doses never fails to do the work."

TASKER POLK THRILLS AUDIENCE AT KINSTON

Had He Paused for Applause, He Might Never Have Finished.

His Speech for Democracy a Gem, Not Surpassed by Any Speaker in Lenoir in Years—Toast Proposed.

(By G. W. McDevett.)

Kinston, N. C., Oct. 7.—One might comb the lower regions with a harrow and sweep them with a broom and not find more iniquities than resulted from Republican rule in North Carolina; a suggestion that, as a punishment, "Bonds" Butler be forced to sit through the ages at the statehouse door like the leper of the Bible, hands raised, crying to the passerby, "Unclean; unclean; unclean," and that the Republican party even raised the price of Bibles because of the commandment, "Thou shalt not steal," were some of the things said by Tasker Polk, a kinsman of the late President Polk, in a speech to a Democratic audience here—a speech characterized as one of the best this section had ever heard.

The address was a gem. It has not been surpassed here in years and years, if ever. It was gotten off in a style new and refreshing. The speaker's delivery was lacking in vocal volume and gesticulation, but it was replete with wisdom, choicest language and phrases that drove home. Every other sentence was a delight. He seemed not inclined to pause to allow his hearers to applaud, which was wise; otherwise he might never have gotten through.

Mr. Polk showed how democracy was the first thing in government. He went back to the beginning of mankind—described the creature who took his wife by force of "arms" or the weight of his club, who begot a shock-headed, bear-hide-clothed progeny and then had the love of home instilled in his dormant conscience by God. The cave man ,the first tiny seed of civilization having been sown, learned to wish that his ragged little urchins might have a better rearing than he had, and so he gradually grasped one thing after another and progressed through the ages to the point where centralization of power was a realized necessity. Then he and his followers held a conference, and elected the strongest among them to be king. The king died and another was elected, and another, and so on. But there came a time when a king about to die desired that his son might succeed him, and the people submitted. Rule by inheritance became an established institution, and rule by the people passed out. And there came a time when a king tried to dictate to the people the manner in which they should worship God, and there was a protest. That brought the speaker down to the Pilgrims who, the winds of God's love stilling the troubled waters before them, came to America, and on Plymouth Rock knelt and thanked the God of storms Who had seen them safely hither, and commenced the task of building an empire.

Independence and constitutional government of themselves by a people determined upon exercising the rights to pursue happiness, earn a living out from under the laws of masters, and worship God or not worship Him as they saw fit, came to the new land. An ideal state of affairs, purchased with bloodshed, resulted. The symbol, a flag with a field of azure for truth, spangled with stars white for purity and striped with red recalling the holy blood which was shed that it might wave high, is a sacred banner worthy of the adoration which Americans hold for it.

Then Mr. Polk skeletonized the history of the Republic, its ups and downs to the present time when it seems that the ultimate of perfection in governmental efficiency has been attained. He told of the first high tariff, destined, according to the author, to protect an infant nation's infant industries, and not altogether right to begin with, by admission, and fostered through the decades until the wall towered high and the country was being cheated beyond reason.

Sectionalism is being dealt in by Northern orators, declared Mr. Polk; now why should not a Southerner take a fling back? They accuse the administration of the crime of naming Southern men to important chairmanships, neglecting to say, however, that the South furnishes no committee majority, only the brains for the most important places on the committees.

The constructive legislation of the administration was held up as a great panorama of progress. Regional banks, land loan banks, the shipping bill, revision downward of a tariff which put a tax of 80 per cent on a farmer's commodity and 10 per cent on a diamond necklace, the income tax—by the way, North Carolina pays into the United States treasury more for the maintenance of the National government aside from the income tax than all of the New England states put together—and the many other blessings that have come to the land with Woodrow Wilson and the progressive Democratic reign were touched upon one by one. Should it have been left up to the G. O. P. to revise the tariff according to what the Nation thought reasonable, Mr. Polk stated, countless generations would live and die—it would be sunset in purgatory—before that blessing would be achieved. He told a story borrowed from a colored parson's sermon, about the length of eternity. If a jay bird were to set about the task of putting the waters of the Atlantic ocean into the Pacific, moving a drop a day in its beak by miraculous flights across the continent and never tiring, it would not be sun-up in hell when he had done, the preacher told his congregation. It would be longer than that before the Republicans would complete the work of tariff reduction, Mr. Polk asserted.

The speaker painted brilliant word pictures throughout his address. He likened America to a dimpled babe nestling in the cradle of the universe, and described North Carolina as a glorious dame looking out over scenes of peace and prosperity, corn like soldiers in serried ranks in illimitable fields, cotton whitening patches of the landscape, trains everywhere, mill wheels turning and telegraph wires sputtering in every nook. He told of the dark days, when men bowed with trouble returned from bloody Virginia to find more trouble at home than ever they had dreamed of, of reconstruction and

NEW WORK OUR SOCIETY SHOULD UNDERTAKE.

Exodus 14:8-15.

The main message of this passage for us is the command of the Lord, "Go Forward." This is what God wants us to do, "Go forward;" There is no such things as standing still; we either go forward or backward. The command all along the line is "Advance". Our great business is to take the world for Christ, and we need to go forward.

Let us not be misguided by that "new;" sometimes we attempt "new things" when we have not yet learned to do the old things. Some when they have sung some of the hymns in the old book, think they need a new one. It may be that they have not learned more than twenty-five per cent of the hymns of the "old book."

We had better learn to do old unfinished work in a new way. "What is worth doing at all is worth doing well." We too often do our work with a "lick-and-a-promise" plan, touching it today, and expecting to do more tomorrow.

1. We might well try to have our old prayer meeting in a "new way." We can put more variety and life into the service. We can plan more carefully for the service. Let us studiously avoid placing in our plans anything that would not directly help the service. Do not give any reader a "daily Bible reading" with thirty-nine verses in it that he will read in a very disinterested way, and really drag the meeting. Instead of that, pick out one verse and let him read it and say something and talk, or sit down. Vaccinate your members against "clippitis". Get one of Karl Lehman's ladders to show how to climb up in the work of leading a meeting.

2. Try to have the monthly business meetings in a new way. Have the plans so mature and reports written up in such a way that the business can be expedited promptly and give full information about the work. Let a snappy social committee have a good program prepared for the next period and let everyone leave glad that he came. A thorough systematic, consistent monthly business meeting will be a new way of carrying on this feature of the work, and will make the work prosper.

3. Let the other committees mentioned on the Efficiency Chart have a chance at planning and conducting a prayer meeting. For example let the "Giving or Tithe Committee" have charge of a meeting on this subject. Instead of talks they might have testimonials on the subject of the giving of the tithe. If you have a Tenth Legion, have the members take this part of the program. And any other committee might work up the plans for a most interesting meeting along its line.

4. It is time to give "new emphasis" to the old, original idea that Christian Endeavor Society is organized to aid the work of the church. In some quarters one would think that the church exists for the purpose of helping the Christian Endeavor Society. Dr. Clark, and all the leaders of the Christian Endeavor work constantly urge that the society be active, helpful agency in the work of the church. Every society should plan to expend at least fifty per cent of its energy upon the work of the church in some other department than its own organization. One of the newest ways to help yourself is to help some one else.

5. The best "new thing" you can do is to think of the best ways of helping to do the old work. Use your head. In your head is a full equipment of brains. Think! Plan! Think of some "new way" to get the old members to do "new and better work." "A better way" is always a "New way." The reverse is not always necessarily true.

PROGRESS IN ORAL HYGIENE.

Systematic Care of Children's Mouths is Now Widespread.

(Matthias Nicoll, Jr., M. D., in The Outlook.)

There is just one moment in your life when your mouth is bacteriologically clean. That is the moment of your birth. During all the remaining years your mouth is a veritable botanic garden of bacteria. Most of these bacteria are harmless. Some are harmless in a healthy mouth, but harmful in varying degrees when concentrated in damaged or dead tissues. Some are the familiar germs of the communicable diseases—pneumonia, diphtheria, tuberculosis and blood poisoning.

Within the last few years the public interest in oral hygiene has spread rapidly throughout all enlightened countries. In the United States the progress has been amazing.

New York city, through its health department, has taken a leading part in the work, and set an example for other communities to follow. The number of pupils in New York city showing defective teeth was found to be so large—namely, 9 children in every 10—that in 1913 the department of health decided to direct its energies toward prevention of dental defects rather than cure. For this purpose it now employs a supervising dentist and nine operating dentists in seven clinics, to each of which also a nurse is assigned.

Only children from 6 to 8 years are kept under supervision. These all report at the clinics, where the teeth are thoroughly cleaned, defects repaired, and, when absolutely necessary, extractions are made. At six months' intervals throughout their entire school life they are required to return. From time to time they are visited at their homes by the nurse and taught the proper use of the toothbrush and the importance of clean mouths.

The results have been most encouraging, and it is confidently expected that future generations of school children will show a much smaller proportion of oral defects than the present generation, which has unfortunately been deprived of this intelligent service.

COLD SHOULDER FOR "TWO TWO."

New York Dancing Teachers Reject the Chicago Innovation.

(New York Telegraph.)

The latest novelty in ballroom skill called the "Two Two," which comes from the National Association of Dancing Masters' convention in Chicago and is heralded as the terpsichorean "white hope," will find a cold welcome among the teachers who teach in New York, according to the advance information of those who will attend the convention here of the American Society of the Professors of Dancing.

In fact, it is indicated that the New York teachers will reject all of the new dances that are being offered for public consumption in Chicago and will cling to the simple steps of the fox trot and one-step.

RELIGIOUS WORK IN THE MILITARY CAMPS

Opportunities on Mexican Border Almost Limitless.

Reports From Secretaries of Army Young Men's Christian Association Tell Interesting Story of Field For Service.

New York, Oct. 7.—Reports from secretaries of the Army Young Men's Christian Association, in charge of association activities in the military camps on the Mexican border, say that the opportunities for religious work are almost without limit. There are men in the camps of all kinds and beliefs. They have considerable leisure but often do not know what to do with it and are glad to listen to anything which will fill in their spare time.

The camp at McAllen, Texas, will serve as an illustration. In this camp are regiments representing a cross section of all classes of society. Many of the men have been in railroad service; others employed by the New York Rapid Transit Company. There are engineers and business men, students, a member of Princeton's last year's football team and ex-prie fighters. Then, in Squadron A and in the Seventh regiment, are the very elite of New York City, including dozens of the best known names of the metropolis. These thousands of active and progressive young men, representing the adventurous and patriotic spirit of every class of society in our country, are deprived of the social and recreative life to which they have been accustomed and become weary of the monotony of the camps.

The Young Men's Christian Association provides many facilities for recreation and the thirty-eight big association buildings in the border camps, from the Gulf of Mexico to the Pacific, are centers of social life. A regular programme of religious work is faithfully carried out. In most of the camps Bible classes are easy to start. One man, head waiter of a big New York hotel, got together two or three men, the Sunday before the Young Men's Christian Association secretaries arrived in camp, to sing hymns. Fifteen men joined his group when they heard the singing and the head waiter started the first Bible class at McAllen. Another class was formed after a conversation between a secretary and a man who was eager to study the Bible.

Under the conditions which prevail in the military camps, men who have not been accustomed to read the Bible will do so. On a Sunday morning, when copies of the book of Proverbs were being given away in one of the Army Association buildings, a soldier asked what it was. He did not seem especially interested when told. One of the secretaries said, "You go and read this just as if it were another boo.. and you will find it very interesting," and the soldier took a copy, sat right down and started to read.

Ten different Bible classes, held in the tents of various companies of the New Jersey regiments at Douglas, Arizona, have been conducted by the Young Men's Christian Association secretaries connected with the Army Association building at Douglas. One of the groups gave the leader a unanimous vote of thanks for his work; another requested the leader's return by a rising vote.

It is not often that a Bible class teacher is given three cheers as an expression of appreciation. In the Army Young Men's Christian Association building at Douglas, Arizona, eight nationalities were represented in a group led by the secretary, as follows: Polish, Hebrew, Canadian, American, Italian, Irish, Scotch and English. It was after the class broke up that the Hebrew representative proposed the three cheers for the leader, which were given with enthusiasm.

Five hundred men have been enrolled for Bible study in the camp of the Virginia troops at Brownsville, Texas. One hundred and fifty were present on Sunday, September 1st, in spite of an hour's deluge of rain which began ten minutes before the meeting hour.

Two Bible classes are held daily in connection with the branch Young Men's Christian Association which has been established at the army base hospital, Camp Wilson, San Antonio.

One Sunday in August, in the Army Association building with the Minnesota Militia at Llano Grande, Texas, a secretary taught a Bible class, addressed two meetings and presided at the organ. The day in the building started with Episcopal communion, administered by the chaplain of the 1st Minnesota infantry.

At Association building, No. 3, Camp Wilson, San Antonio, three strong evangelistic services, with 1,729 men present, were held on August 13th. The attendance at a fifteen-minute devotional service before closing the building numbered 250 men.

In many of the buildings of the Army Young Men's Christian Association on the Mexican border, the evening is closed with a short devotional service, sometimes lasting only five minutes. A private of Company G, 2nd New York infantry, said to a secretary: "I like the meeting you have just before you close at night; I will help you all I can."

A mid-week devotional service, held around the temporary Young Men's Christian Association tent at the Leon Springs, Texas, Rifle Range, was attended by 250 men.

There are many opportunities for personal work among the state troops in camp along Mexican border, especially with lonely men and others who need good counsel or advice. Regular visits are paid by the Army Y. M. C. A. secretaries to hospitals, where letters are written and cheer carried to the sick men.

One secretary on temporary duty for three days in a camp writes: "Had personal interviews with twenty men during these three days and in most cases they were heart-to-heart talks in regard to their fight for manly Christian lives."

There is a group of men that the Association secretaries seek out especially—the fellows who have gotten into some trouble which has landed them in the guard house. Here they have time to reffect on the mistakes they have made and the secretaries are often able to help them make decisions that will affect the remainder of their lives.

In the "Clean-Living Campaign," conducted by the Army Young Men's Christian Association in the soldiers' camps on the Mexican border, thousands of soldiers signed clean-living cards. Christian manhood was the foundation of the appeal made publicly and in personal interviews.

Inner circles have been organized in each company of the Second Virginia regiment, in camp at Brownsville, Texas; and in three companies of the First Virginia regiment. These circles are made up of three to five men who agree to do four things: (1) Canvass each man in his company for Bible study; (2) promote attendance upon all religious meetings; (3) meet once a week for devotion and a discussion of how they can help the men in their company to better living; (4) to speak to at least two men a week about the Christian life. Some of these circles have done fine work. One man won five others for the Christian life on one day; another got fifteen cards signed for clean living; two groups have signed up each man in their company for Bible study.

In most of the camps of the troops along the Mexican boundary, the regimental chaplains and the Army Young Men's Christian Association secretaries co-operate in religious work. Chaplains conduct services in the Association buildings Sunday mornings and there is usually a mid-week devotional service, conducted by one of the camp chaplains.

Men who would not attend a Sunday evening religious service at home, because it is "too hot" or for other reasons, turn out in good numbers for the Sunday night song service, held in nearly all the Association buildings. At each service a secretary gives a short, practical religious talk.

The program for a recent Sunday at the Army Young Men's Christian Association building in the camp of the 1st Illinois cavalry, Brownsville, Texas, included: Catholic mass at 7:30 a. m., a very strong service; Jewish service at 8:30 a. m., led by a young Jew who is being prepared for the priesthood; and a Young Men's Christian Association meeting at 7:45 p. m., addressed by the chaplain of the 1st Virginia infantry.

Five religious services each Sunday are held in Army Young Men's Christian Association No. 1, with the 2nd and 23rd New York infantry at Pharr, Texas. At 7:30 there is communion; at 8:30 Catholic mass; 9:30 preaching service of Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, chaplain of the 23rd New York infantry; at 10:30 preaching by Dr. Jaynes, chaplain of the 3rd New York infantry; at 7:30 p. m. gospel service conducted by the Young Men's Christian Association.

A New York National Guard officer, homeward bound, in conversation with three secretaries, said: "The Young Men's Christian Association is doing a great work for the men in our camp. When I came here I hadn't been to church for 12 years and said that I would never go again. My wife is a Christian and tried to get me to go along to church but I wouldn't. When I came here I went to the Young Men's Christian Association to write; then I became interested and haven't missed a service. Next Sunday, I shall be home. I am going to surprise them by attending church and I intend to keep it up."

A newspaper man, who had been skeptical about religion, said: "Since I have seen the fine activity of the Young Men's Christian Association here in the camp, I have come to realize there is some good still in Christianity. The Association is doing splendid work and it got on the job quicker than any other organization in the camp."

Lieut. Col. Skinner, of the medical staff, in charge of the base hospital at Nogales, Arizona, said: "I will be glad to co-operate in any way possible for the benefit of the men in the hospital. Would it not be possible to have some sort of religious service on Sundays? I will be glad to play the organ for you."

A militiaman told an Army Young Men's Christian Association secretary in one of the camps that since coming to the border he had almost forgotten there was a God but that the Association's Sunday evening service had brought him back to God.

Ill Health Often Caused by the Kidneys

Of all the ills mankind suffers from, nothing is more to be feared than those caused by kidney poisoning, because such ailments usually come on so stealthily that you are seldom aware of their presence until they have actually spread dangerous diseases throughout the body. There are, however, certain signs by which you can tell whether your kidneys are properly cleansing the blood.

If you arise in the morning with dull, aching pains in the back and feel as if your night's rest had not refreshed you; if you are weak, depressed, nervous or irritable; if your head aches spots appear before your eyes; if your appetite is poor, your complexion sallow; if you have indigestion, biliousness, rheumatic pains and have lost flesh rapdly, you may be sure kidney poisons exist in your blood, and you cannot possibly get well until they are removed. Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Remedy has a steady, beneficial action on the kidneys that usually brings relief in a short time. It is recognized by many physicians as one of the most dependable medicines in the treatment of kidney and liver diseases. It contains no harmful ingredients. Try it. # Photoplays and Photoplayers

Lou-Tellegen, the famous romantic actor, will be seen at the Grand on Monday in the Jesse L. Lasky production of "The Victory of Conscience," written for him by Margaret Turnbull from the story of Alexandro de Jannelli. Mr. Tellegen will be supported by Cleo Ridgley and an all-star Lasky cast.

This Paramount picture is the first photo-dramatic production in which Lou-Tellegen has appeared since his marriage to the famous Geraldine Farrar.

Miss Ridgley will be remembered for her splendid performance in "The Golden Chance," "The Selfish Woman," and "The House With the Golden Windows." Others prominent in the cast are Elliott Dexter, Thomas Delmar and Laura Woods Cushing.

The story has to do with the spiritual and mental awakening of Louis, Count de Tavannes. The count and his handsome, harum scarum companion, Prince Dimitri Karitzin, steal a little dancing girl from a French tavern. The girl falls in love with Louis but he casts her aside, and is nearly killed in a fight with her former sweet heart. Upon recovering, the former sinner enters the priesthood.

How he again meets the dancer, wins her admiration and induces her to enter a monastery, is brought about in a way that has never before been seen by the photo-dramatic audiences. To say that this play is unusual and sensational, is but a mild description.

Cleo Ridgley, as the dancer, has been given one of the best roles of her entire career, and she has risen to the occasion with all the energy and ability at her command.

The Week at the Victoria.

Another all-star aggregation has been secured to fill next week at the Victoria, a musical comedy company which have received only the very loudest praise everywhere it has played. Rocky Mount, where it filled the past week, broke all records with this company, and right behind the American Girls Company, who played there the week before, the Rocky Mount Telegram of last Tuesday said the following in the course of a long criticism:

"The best one yet' could be heard on every side as the first show at the Grand let out last night and those saying it were not making any mistake for the Winter Garden Girls Musical Comedy Company has just claims to being the most enjoyable of the shows seen at the Grand this season. And after the very high order of show that has been presented for the past two weeks the Winter Garden Company had to go some to top it, but the fact remains that they did and if you want some nifty, neat and clever entertainment, the Grand has it."

The Winter Garden Girls Company features that great vaudeville team, Lola Vann and Jack Grant in a "black and tan" specialty that is away above the average. The Telegram said of Grant: "His style of entertaining is entirely different from the usual black face comedian's work and it has a refreshing newness that makes good everywhere."

For Monday and Tuesday this all-star aggregation will present "On the Veranda," a production which alternate flashes of comedy ,song and dance. Special scenery for every show, with new and nifty costumes, add much to the company.

To introduce this company, the ladies will be extended the same courtesy as last Monday night, tomorrow night only.

Five-Reel Triangle—Royal.

You have never seen a five-reel Triangle comedy before, so tomorrow's presentaton of that famous Broadway favorite, William Collier, in the stellar role of a mammoth five-reel Ince-Triangle comedy, "The No-Good Guy," should be the most notable offering of the entire week at the Royal.

It's the first of its kind in which the famous Broadway star has ever appeared, and is one long laugh from beginning to end—for a full hour and a half. For years Collier has been famous on Broadway for his droll manner, his clean comedy and his faculty for drawing a laugh from an entire house without cracking a smile himself. All of this ability is intensified and magnified on the screen. Here he is not limited by the width of breadth of a stage, and with his greater margin of room he is a constant roar.

Collier is drunk, in the major portion of the play and that means he is funnier than ever. Just imagine the comical picture of Collier trying without success to climb into bed as it rolls and reels and just escapes his wavering clutch—wine and liquor then to quench his never ending thirst! That's just one of the hundreds of situations.

Seldom indeed has a piece of comedy been so truly amusing, so highly diverting and at the same time so intensely interesting. He is supported by a great Triangle cast including the beautiful Enid Markley.

Feature For Children.

Features that were planned and arranged especially for the amusement and instruction of the children afe found in a grand profusion in John Robinson's Ten Big Shows which will exhibit in Wilmington on November 6, both afternoon and evening. The general director of this splendid circus, thanks the worl dof children, and he has, at much labor and expense, perfected a series of comedy acts that are daily furnishing veritable barrels of fun to countless boys and girls, the country over. With the dean of America's producing clown as the comedian in Chief, the clowns number twenty-five, and, although they even cause the most serious men and women to laugh heartily, they hava been especially instructed to cater to the little folks.

Aside from the clowns, numerous animal acts and tableaux have been perfected solely for children. Then there is the zoological display—said to be the most complete under canvas—which will probably impress the little ones as the most wonderful portion of the whole circus. Certain it is that the menagerie is of mestimable educational value, and it is to be sincerely hoped that all parents will take advantage of the opportunity afforded by the large menagerie of John Robinson's Ten Big Shows to acquaint their little children with the looks and mannerisms of the wild beasts that have been collected from all parts of both hemispheres and carefully classified.

"Liberty"—Bijou Tomorrow

"Dead or Alive," is the striking title of the fourth great episode of "Liberty—A Daughter of the U. S. A." that stirring patriotic Universal serial starring Marie Walcamp in the greatest role she has ever portrayed on the screen, and which is tomorrow's top attraction at the Bijou.

In this stirring chapter there is no let-up in the hign speed and action that has so far been maintained. With Jacques Jaccard at the helm as director and such a galaxy of stars in the crew as Marie Walcamp, the dare-devil of the films, handsome Jack Holt, famous Neal Hart, versatile Grassby, the sinister villain, G. Raymond Nye, and the intrepid Eddie Polo, "Liberty" cannot help but sail to a glorious victory. In thi scase there is no question as to how long the interest can be held, for the whole plan of the picture is already laid out and the last of the 20 chapters are even more exciting than the first.

Other big features at the Bijou tomorrow include a great Vim comedy scream, "The Reformer", starring those inimitable characters. "Plump and Runt" in some of their funniest antics, and also a rousing Vitagraph scream, "Getting By", starring beautiful Shirley Moore with Huntley Gordan, in the principal roles.

"The Shielding Shadow"—Coming.

Never before has such a superb aggregation of talent collaborated on one serial as helped to make "The Shielding Shadow", Pathe's new super-production which is announced for presentation at the Bijou beginning next Friday. Double prices have been charged for this serial, and despite this fact the advance bookings from all over the country have already surpassed the great "Iron Claw" serial. It cost double as much to produce it, therefore Pathe had to charge the exhibitors double prices for it.

Starring in this super serial is the new Pearl White "thrill girl"; Grace Darmond, one of the prettiest and most fascinating leading ladies on the screen. Though still in her teens and though young and charming, effeminate and fascinating, she has to dare death throughout the 15 chapters. She makes aparachute descent from a balloon that is a mass of flames, jumps from a wagon at the extreme edge of a 150-foot cliff, plunges from a boat into the water as the boat is blown up, is knocked unconscious by a falling beam in an earthquake, is floated down a sluice swarming with rats into the river, and has other miraculous escapes too numerous to mention.

Supporting her is Ralph Kellard in the lead, one of the most fascinating and dashing young male leads in pictures who has had a meteoric career and will make the most popular hero ever seen on the Bijou screen. Then comes Leon Barry, one of the foremost dramatic actors of France, former leading man with Sarah Bernhardt and other famous French stars. In the villainous role he is a tower of strength and cunning. Then comes another great star—something that no serial in the past has had—a fourth leading character in Madeline Traverse, "The Maxine Elliott of the screen" who is cast in a vampire-villain role. She is a famous stage beauty and adds much charm to this great serial.

William Collier, Robert Kortman and Enid Markey, in "The No-Good Guy," Triangle.

"The No-Goor Guy," First Five-Reel Triangle Comedy at Royal Tomorrow.

LOU-TELLEGEN

So-Star with Cleo Ridgley in "The Victory of Conscience," Latest Paramount Feature, at the Grand Monday.

Boston, Mass., Oct. 6.—The acceptance of a gift of 20 acres of land in Brookline, on which it is proposed to build a sanitorium to be conducted by the Mother church, was announced by the Christian Science board of directors tonight. The step was taken in accordance with the wishes of the founder of the church, Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy, who proposed to the directors in 1909 that the Mother church should "establish and maintain a Christian Science resort for the so-called sick."

GRACE DARMOND, Pathe

The Daring Star of Pathe's Wonder-Serial, "The Shielding Shadow"

Col. W. F. Cody (Buffalo Bill) "Again in the Saddle" With the Buffalo Bill-101 Ranch Show, Wilmington, October 16.

COL. W. F. CODY IS BACK 'IN THE SADDLE'

Interesting Sketch of Originator of Wild West Shows.

Famous Indian Fighter and Picturesque Showman Will be in Wilmington With "Buffalo Bill" Circus Next Week.

Col. Wm. F. Cody, former Chief of Scouts, Indian fighter, dead shot, traveler, raconteur and picturesque showman, known to at least two generations as "Buffalo Bill," is reported to be again "in the saddle" this season, and his visit to Wilmington with the newly combined Buffalo Bill-101 Ranch shows Monday, Oct. 16, will revive many memories of the career of this noted national character.

The history of the Borderland would not be complete if the name of Col. Cody was eliminated. While still a young man his "nerve" and cool-headed judgment was so generally recognized that time after time he was employed to rid the "tough" towns of Kansas and Nebraska of their undesirable citizens, and when he undertook the job he never failed. The border outlaws learned to have a very wholesome respect for "Marshal Cody." He made an early study of the Indians and their methods of hunting and making war, and whenever there was danger of an Indian outbreak his services were in demand. As a scout the Indians recognized the fact that he was equal or superior to themselves, and they were always afraid of him. As a Buffalo hunter in the days when the bison stampeded in great herds across the Western plains, and especially in the valleys of the upper Missouri, he acquired a reputation that has remained with him throughout the years.

Col. Cody originated the Wild West show as it is known in the United States, and through his exhibition he gave the people of the East their first glimpse of the real life of the great prairies. Up to that time the cowboy, the cowgirl and the plains Indians were almost mythical characters along the Atlantic seaboard and even in the Middle West. Naturally, the realism of the show created a sensation, and this sensation was more than duplicated when Col. Cody took his great exhibition to Europe. In England and on the Continent Buffalo Bill was "taken up" by royalty and the nobility; he was a personal friend of the late King Edward when he was the Prince of Wales; he knew the Kaiser intimately when he was the Crown Prince, and was entertained by many distinguished Europeans, both military men and members of the learned professions.

Many well-known artists sought the privilege of painting the picturesque-looking plainsman, and among them was Rosa Bonheur, the famous animal painter. The original of the Bonheur picture is in Paris, but Col. Cody has a small copy of it made and presented to him by the artist, and it is one of his most-prized possessions. It shows the Colonel astride a magnificent Kentucky-bred horse, presented to him on the eve or his first departure for Europe by officer friends in the U. S. army. The artist was infatuated with the American horses, and spent several weeks with the show sketching and painting them, as well as in making pencil sketches of Col. Cody. While working, she dressed in the breeches and smock of a peasant farmer. Col. Cody has been in Paris several times since the death of the great Bonheur, and never fails to lay a wreath on her tomb at Pere la Chaise.

Col. Cody, in a recent interview, expressed himself as being delighted to get back into the Wild West arena, where he has spent so many years of his long and adventurous life. The "Preparedness" spectacle, which is being featured by the Buffalo Bill-101 Ranch shows, also, he declared, appealed to him, because it afforded him an opportunity to make a direct, and at the same time picturesque, appeal to his countrymen to prepare to defend the honor of the country against all aggressors. The soldiers untilized in the display have been furloghed by the U. S. War Department for the purpose, an dthis in itself is a graceful tribute to Col. Cody and an official recognition of his former services in the interest of the army.

H. N. POPE ADVOCATES UNIVERSAL PROTECTION

Says No Country Can Thrive Half Protected, Half Free.

President of Association of State Farmers' Union Presidents Issues "Memorial to Congress" Giving His Views.

The following dispatch, signed by Henry N. Pope and charges prepaid, was received by The Star Friday night for "release Sunday morning" and is printed for what it is worth:

Fort Worth, Texas, Oct. 7.—In a memorial to Congress issued today entitled, "The American Farmer and His Government," H. N. Pope, president of the Association of State Farmers' Union Presidents, favors protection on all agricultural products, declares that no country can thrive half protected and half free, insists that there is no such thing as a hyphenated tariff, and asks that cotton be protected by a 12-cent minimum loan from the government.

The memorial, which goes into an exhaustive analysis of the subject, says in part:

"The cotton producer is the only class of farmer who has always been compelled to sell what he produced on a free market and buy what he consumed on a protected market and, as a consequence, the cotton fields of the South have more tenants, more poverty and more suffering than any other agricultural area in the western hemisphere. This condition should challenge, but not baffle American statesmanship."

"No matter what one's views may be on the governmental policy of protection or free trade, all will agree that no country can reach its highest degree of prosperity half protected and half free.

"This country should assist all industries or none. No productive industry can thrive selling in a free market and buying in a protected one. We have no desire to bring all agricultural and manufactured products to the level of cotton, we only ask that cotton be lifted to the level of other industries.

"It matters not whether a tariff is levied for protection or for revenue, it offers to industry the same assistance. There is no such thing as a hyphenated tariff.

"A policy of universal protection is in the interest of the American farmer, for he sells more than he buys.

"Protecting the factory without protecting the plow is an unpardonable discrimination, and should not be tolerated by the farmers of the Nation, neither should any one agricultural product receive protection unless all agricultural products receive protection."

DR. HERTY LEAVES CHAPEL HILL FIRST OF DECEMBER.

Gives His Reasons for Accepting Editorship of Chemical Journal.

(Special Star Correspondence.)

Chapel Hill, N. C., Oct. 7.—Prof. Charles Holmes Herty arrived in Chapel Hill from New York last night, and today set forth his reasons for accepting the editorship of the Journal of Industrial and Engineering Chemistry. He has decided to continue with his regular work here until December 1, at which time he will enter upon his editorial duties.

"Three things made this decision very hard for me," declared Dr. Herty in a special interview today. "I hate to leave my work here in the University chemistry department. I like the fine spirit of both the professors and students. Second, I hate to give up North Carolina, for I have formed a warm attachment for the North Carolinian as a type; furthermore, I especially value my friends in this State. I also like the motto—esse quam videri, to be rather than to seem—for it describes North Carolinians so well, the straight-out sincerity of her people. In the third place, I am pulling myself away from the South, a section which I love not in a boasting way, but in a way to want to work for it. When I mentioned this before the executive committee of the Chemical Society, they declared that I could do more good to the South through the columns of the Industrial Journal than through any one educational institution. I would feel awfully bad if I felt I was getting away from an opportunity to work for the South."

its Northern carpet-baggers and native scalawags and n egro legislatures—the mastery of the proud Caucasian by a race whose shackles were the day before removed—and of Kitchin's negro predecessors. He recalled the coming of the colossus Vance out of the mountains to lead his people into the Canaan of hope, and the magnificent era that followed the re-birth of hope; how the cry, "They are fighting at Wilmington," electrified the commonwealth; the constitutional amendment and the coming of enduring peace. There was not a word of censure for the colored man. His sins were others' wishes. Mr. Polk in conclusion proposed a toast,

"Here's to Tom Bickett and the whole State ticket,
Including Joyner, Lacy, Wood and Grimes,
With prosperity at the door and four years more
Of Democratic good times."

WILSON HARDEST CANDIDATE TO BEAT REPUBLICANS EVER FOUGHT

Major Burke, Extensive Traveler, Expresses Opinion at Goldsboro.

(Special Star Correspondence).

Goldsboro, N. C., Oct. 7.—Major John M. Burke, veteran historian of Western data, was a visitor in this city yesterday, where the major has many warm personal friends. In discussing political issues with the writer, who was aware of the fact that Mr. Burke was an extensive traveler, he laughed when asked how badly Woodrow Wilson was going to beat Chas. E. Hughes in the coming election, but replied Mr. Burke, "I don't like to make any statement just for the safe of getting my name in the newspapers, but will say this much anyway, President Wilson is going to be the hardest candidate to defeat the Republicans have ever 'bucked up' against."

The major is a strong advocate for preparedness and in discussing this subject he stated that our navy should in quality of personnel, size, standing and equipment, be unequalled, that when that times arrives in ths country will then be able to command peace without war through conditions, position and power.

GOTHAMITES TURNING TO THE OPEN AIR

Amusements and Entertainments Had Big Boom.

Interlocking Directorates Tabooed by Federal Reserve—Retail Merchants Discuss Merchandising—Powerful Searchlight

(Special Star Correspondence.)

New York Oct. 7.—The people who live in great cities are cultivating more and more the "out-of-door habit." New York still entertains its old-time fondness for bright lights and the Great White Way, but notwithstanding the delights derived from these sources there has been a growing envy of the freedom from restraint enjoyed by people in less crowded communities.

Baseball, football and the circus, and occasional flings at golf and tennis formerly constituted the principal resources of city folks in seeking out-of-door amusements. Of course, in New York there are the boat rides down the bay, with afternoons and evenings at the beaches. But the diversions are simply brief respites from the routine of life spent in houses and offices. The "movies" were among the first to provide out-of-door shows, and they thereby increased their popularity. Some of the hotels established roof gardens, which became immensely popular—and usually very expensive.

There have been great affairs held in New York's out-of-doors during the present season, among which was the great Shakespearian production known as "Caliban," provided at the City College Stadium, several weeks ago. Other important features of out-of-door amusements were the great May-day parties, and the singing of religious and patriotic songs by thousands of people who gathered in Central Park. The European folk customs have been stimulated this year, and they have not only helped to furnish enjoyment for a part of the city population, but have also served to preserve and popularize this class of entertainments in the United States.

When the open-air drama was furnished it proved so popular that the Grand Opera remained as the only feature needed to complete the triumphs of the year's out-of-door performances. "Die Walkuere," "Cavalleria Rusticana" and "Pagliacci" were witnessed by audiences of nearly 10,000 people who pronounced the open air operas charmingly successful. The regular Metropolitan orchestra was used, and Madame Gadski, Luca Botta, Emma Borniggia and many other Metropolitan stars helped to produce the operas.

If the start made this year is followed up next season, New York will get almost as much out-of-doors as the people who go to the mountains, or spend the summer on farms.

During the investigation of the so-called "money trust" several years ago, there was an endless amount of inquiry into interlocking directors, and the Stanley Investigating Committee became famous through its inquisition of Carnegie, Rockefeller, Morgan, Baker, Schwab and other prominent capitalists and financiers. The evils which it was thought were clearly brought out at that time were carefully considered in the creating of the new federal banking law. That these interlocking directors interfered with the natural course of banking, and operated to the detriment of the general public, appears to have been substantiated by the attitude of the Federal Reserve Board, which has just taken action upon 679 applications of directors of national banks throughout the country. The Board has rejected 123 directors. In the New York district 134 applications were granted and 48 denied. The Board explains that it has considered each case on its own merit, but has taken the general position that the mere purchase by two banks of commercial paper in the open market or the making of time or demand loans on collateral securities having a wide market, or the purchasing of such securities, need not necessarily or invariably be considered as indicating "substantial competition" within the meaning of the law. The Reserve Board aims to promote competition, and to prevent directors through their connections with financial institutions from withholding or influencing credit in the local or general loan market. The Reserve Board proceeds on the theory that, as a rule, it is impractical for the same director to serve in institutions which are naturally engaged in competition.

The retail merchants of the country have recently held a big convention, at which every phase of merchandising has been discussed. How to put merchandising on a higher paine of efficiency, correct trade abuses, and improve the quality of goods generally, have been problems of trade that have been given serious consideration. One of the principal speakers told the retail dealers that, "If you are going to make profits you have got to mark your prices in accordance with market conditions. What you were able to sell at 25, 35 or 50 cents or $1 a year ago you cannot profitably sell at such figures now. It looks as if some time must elapse before we get back—if we ever do—to old, standard prices." Consideration was given to the condition whereby some merchants make a practice of cutting down on quality in order to avoid placing higher prices on their goods. The merchants were agreed that the public is more insistent than ever before on receiving reliable merchandise. At their gatherings it was declared that the trash which sold so readily fifteen or twenty years ago cannot any longer be forced upon the buying public.

That the public is willing to pay liberal prices to see a first-class moving picture show has been demonstrated by the marvelous success of Thomas H. Ince's "Civilization," which is now in its fourth month, and still playing to crowded houses. The daring Mr. Ince put this peace picture on Broadday at a time when the whole country was apparently blood-thirsty to get into a war in Europe, Mexico, or mostly anywhere else. The film "Civilization" has all of the big qualities that in the drama have served to create higher ideals, and benefit the public mind. It is one of the most marvelous productions ever shown on the screen, and is one of the very few big moving picture productions that has proven to be a genuine Broadway success.

The new Sperry searchlight, said to be the most powerful in the world, has been attracting a good deal of attention on the water front. The light has been placed on top of a Brooklyn building, and it has a radiating surface of nine feet in diameter. The candle power is 1,280,000,000, and the man who operates it declares that he can see distinctly fifteen miles away. It is also claimed that people nearly fifty miles from New York are able to discover the presence of the light. According to the operators of the great search light, a beam near its source is of such intensity that a pile of rubbish 200 feet away has been set on fire by its rays. Its power is described as so great that "mounted near sea level, it can outline a ship as soon as it appears on the horizon."

HIGHWAY FROM MAINE TO MIAMI NEARLY COMPLETED.

Less Than 100 Miles of the 2,000 of Unfinished Road En Route.

Washington, Oct. 7.—First to be completed of the big border-to-border routes will be the Atlantic Highway, according to figures recently compiled by the Touring Information Board of the American Automobile Associaton. East of Portland, Me., and from Quebec, Can., to Miami, Fla., there is now less than 100 miles of unfinished highway, in this distance of more than 2,000 miles. Of this 100 miles there has been about 11 in Virginia divided into three sectons, that was vicious with none of the balance particularly bad.

The Washington (D. C.) Bureau of the Touring Board now reports that a new road has been completed for one of these sections; a second section is now being rapidly put into good traveling condition, and the contract let and work started on the third section, which was the worst of all, being that section known all over the country as the Choppawamsic swamp. In the meantime the "swamp" road has been put into passable condition and is accepting several score of cars per day. State Road Commissioner Coleman, of Virginia, has given the bad stretches his personal supervision.

The Atlantic Highway, being the main artery for the North and South travel in the fall and spring, was used by several thousand tourists, during the past season, who tempted fate in the trip through the "swamp," many of them being pulled through. All indications show that this season will see an enormous increase in the travel, particularly as the information is rapidly sperading that the trip south from Washington has been robbed of its terrors.

Another dreaded section was the Ogeechee Swamp, south of Savannah. This now has a fine treated macadam highway for its entire eight miles. For the Florida East Coast trip these is a shell and brick highway, except for four miles, from Jacksonville to Miami. Florida now has a state highway department, and Chairman Scott and Commissioner Cocke predicts that with numerous county bond issues the state soon will have a connected road system.

IMPORTANT BOOKS BY MEMBERS OF THE UNIVERSITY FACULTY

Several Now in Press, Some to Be Issued in Week or Two.

Chapel Hill, N. C., Oct. 6.—Several important books by members of the University faculty are now in press, and will be published at an early date, one or two within a week or so. Dr. Francis P. Venable has recently completed a treatise on "Radio-Activity" which is the first work of its kind to be published in the English language. Dr. Venable has long been carrying on original investigations in this field, and many of these will be embodied here. The book will also be used in college classes.

Dr. Edwin Greenlaw, of the English Department, has in press "An Outline of the Literature of the English Renaissance." The book contains about 165 pages, and covers the field from the beginnings of Humanism to the death of Milton. Some of the book is based on his former syllabus, to which has been added an extended introduction, bibliography for advanced students, and a statement of problems for research.

Prof. Norman Foerster, of the English Department, is publishing, through Houghton Mifflin Co., a book of selections from the chief American prose writers. Nine authors are included, very full selections being given from each. The book will contain 626 pages. It belongs to a well known series brought out by these publishers.

Copies of the new edition of Die Journalisten, which has just been re-edited by Prof. W. D. Toy, head of the Department of German, have been received from the publishers. Prof. Toy's first edition of this interesting book was published in 1889. Since then it has been in constant use throughout the colleges of the country, circulating at the rate of there or four thousand copies annually.

Dr. Archibald Henderson has recently edited a 255 page volume entitled "Modern Drama and Opera." The volume is of a very comprehensive kind, dealing with upwards of 700 different plays and operas, with such modern writers and composers as Bhieux, Bjornson, Hauptman, Debussy, Humperdinck and others. Dr. Henderson contributes the bibliographies of Bjornson, Schnitzler and Strindberg; also the introduction "The Drama in America." In the new Drama League series of plays Dr. Henderson has also recently edited Francois de Curel's "L'Envers d Une Sainte," under the title "A False Saint." Dr. Henderson is vice-president of the Drama League, as well.

REAL HAIR SAVER

Found at Last. Shows Results in Three Days, Says Local Druggist.

If you are rapidly losing your hair and fear baldness, R. R. Bellamy invites you to make a three days' test of Parisian Sage. If it does not stop the excessive loss of hair and make your hair and scalp look and feel at least 100 per cent better, they will return your money.

Hundreds of men and women have written telling of the phenomenal results obtained by using Parisian Sage. People who were bald say they now glory in their beautiful hair. Others who have had dandruff for years say they got a clean, healthy scalp after just a few applications of this splendid treatment.

No matter whether you are bothered with falling hair, prematurely gray hair, dry, dull and brittle hair, oily, greasy, stringy hair, dandruff or itching scalp, this well known local firm invites you to try Parisian Sage at their risk. If it succeeds the cost is trifling, and should it fail the cost is nothing. No string or red tape to this money-back offer. If your hair is worth saving, Parisian Sage is worth trying, and a large bottle is inexpensive at your favorite drug or toilet counter.

Files Supplementary Brief in Armor Plant Contest.

Additional Data Covering Labor, Raw Materials and Location is Filed With General Board of the Navy.

(Special Star Correspondence.)

Fayetteville, Oct. 7.—Additional data showing the superiority of Fayetteville as a location point for the government armor plate and projectile plant has been filed with the General Board of the Navy in the form of a supplementary brief which the central committee of the chamber of commerce which has the matter in charge has just forwarded to Washington.

The supplementary matter covers three points, labor, raw material, location, and is as follows:

To the General Board of the Navy, Navy Department, Washington D.C.

Gentlemen: By your courtesy, we have the honor to present to you the following additional data for your consideration in connection with the original brief on this subject which was presented to you at the hearing in Washington on September the 13th.

Labor.

There is a considerable element of mechanically skilled labor at hand in our railroad repair shops, our machine works, lumber, cotton and silk mills, and other manufacturing industries. While we have no labor skilled in the manufacture of armor plate, it is probable that there is none in the country except at Bethlehem. The skilled labor of the class desired will seek the work, attracted by the pay and other inducements offered by the government employment, as well as the exceptionally fine climate and living conditions at Fayetteville. Other industries of this magnitude have had no trouble in getting the labor required. In this connection, we cite the plants of the Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Company and of the duPont munitions work at Hopewell, Va., both of which started with no supply of skilled labor at hand. The large railroad shops located at Hamlet, Spencer and Rocky Mount, in North Carolina, and Florence, in South Carolina, all in our immedjate section, have no trouble in securing skilled labor.

Unskilled labor is plentiful, intelligent, law abiding and cheap, free from all foreign elements. Our citizenship, it is claimed, is the purest American strain existing in the United States. Due to our geographical position, our climatic conditions are as nearly local as can be found, our winters and summers being both mild and short, with long spring and fall seasons, assuring the maximum efficiency of labor.

Raw Material.

We are centrally located as to the transportation of raw material from the most important coal and iron fields of the east. Without discriminating against any source of supply, our location is such that we can be easily reached from all and still be independent of any one.

We beg to call attention to large deposits of ore in North Carolina available, as shown by report of Dr. Joseph Hyde Pratt, State geologist, in statement hereto attached and marked Exhibit 2-b. As stated in this report of Dr. Pratt's, North Carolina probably contains the largest deposits of chromite in the eastern part of our country. It is not necessary to point out to you the advantages of having these deposits of ore and coal at hand in case other sources of supply should be cut off by invasion.

We refer to report of Atlantic Coast Line Railroad, Exhibit C-s, as to transportation, and to the effect that rates would be based on the heavy tonnage incident to the location of this plant.

Location.

Our position midway on the Atlantic seaboard is pre-eminently central both for assembling raw material and for distributing the finished product to the various shipbuilding plants, both by rail and water, as will be seen by reference to the map attached, marked Exhibit A.

Due to our inland location, 104 miles from the coast, we are secure from attack from an enemy fleet. Our location is sufficiently removed from that area between the Potomac river and Boston Bay in which are the great centers of population, wealth, and industry, generally considered the "danger zone." In this connection we beg to refer you to an article in the Manufacturers Recor dof September 14, 1916, page 49, hereto attached, marked Exhibit E. The importance of Fayetteville as a traffic center is shown by the pointer as the port furthest inland from the Atlantic coast. For detailed information we refer you to report of an improvement of the Cape Fear river by United States Minister Hale and the map embodied in report marked Exhibit No. 2, on page 9 of this report. This section of the coast is protected by the Harbor of Refuge now being constructed at Cape Lookout.

Respectfully submitted,
FAYETTEVILLE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.
THOMAS H. SUTTON, President.
BESSIE MARSH, Secretary.

Committee—Thomas H. Sutton, chairman; Neill A. Sinclair, Frederick T. Hale, Donald F. Ray, John C. Gibbs.

Traffic Manager E. D. Kyle of the Norfolk Southern railroad, has had prepared a map showing Fayetteville as a central point for the location of the armor plant. The map shows the distance from the coal and iron fields to this city. Fayetteville is shown to be 351 miles from the Norfolk and Western railway coal fields; 389 miles from the C. & O. coal fields; 430 miles from the C., C. & O. fields; 452 miles from the Virginian Railroad coal fields, and 533 miles from the Southern Railway coal fields. These distances are averaged from the various routes. The distances from the pig iron centers, as shown on the map, are the shortest via natural routes of transportation. Some of these are Birmingham, 561 miles; Bessemer, Ala., 550; Attalla, Ala., 514; Chattanooga, 533; Roanoke, Va., 229; Beuna Vista, Va., 283.

There has been no let-up in the energetic work being done for Fayetteville—if anything harder work is being done by the committees appointed to handle the various phases of the situation and by the business men and citizenship generally not only of Fayetteville but of the State—even of other states—where they have been asked to help, and the outlook is bright. A world of encouragement was given the local men by Congressman Godwin, who has been making his headquarters here this week while covering Cumberland in his joint canvass with A. L. McCaskill, and assured the Fayetteville workers that the whole State is solidly behind them in the effort to bring one of the biggest single industries ever established by the Federal government to North Carolina. Every member of the North Carolina delegation in Congress is for the Cape Fear city.

A particularly pleasing feature is the whole hearted way in which the business men of the State are rallying to the support of Fayetteville. One of the leading business men of Asheville when he heard that the furthest inland port was after the plant, immediately went out and started the ball to rolling in the Mountain City and is still doing splendid work. A well known Tar Heel living in another state writes: "I heartily concur in the suggestion. Fayetteville's climate is salubrious without being enervating; work could be conducted the whole year round without discomfort to operatives. It is near the seaboard, but sufficiently remote to be exempt from attack by battleships or cruisers of large size. It has excellent transportation facilities over the Atlantic Coast Line, the Southern, and Seaboard Air Line railways, connecting with all the great railroad systems of our country. All power that could possibly be used could be supplied from the immense electric plants on the Cape Fear, Yadkin and Pee Dee rivers. No more faithful, loyal American citizenship exists, between the Atlantic and the Pacific than the surrounding population for hundreds of miles. A smaller number of hyphenated individuals can be found in that secton than in any other equal extent of territory within the Union."

Among the prominent men who have endorsed Fayetteville's claim, in addition to those already published, are Congressman Robert N. Page, Congressman Charles M. Stedman, Governor Locke Craig, J. Elwood Cox, of High Point; W. T. Dortch, of Goldsboro; E. T. Cansler, of Charlotte; R. H. McDuffie, of Asheville; Mayor J. E. Rankin, of Asheville, J. A. Campbell, principal of Buie's Creek Academy; W. H. Carr, Kingstree, S. C.; Dennie G. Brummitt, Oxford; Paul R. Capelle, Rocky Mount; C. N. Brown, Asheville; A. M. Scales, of Greensboro; David W. Bethea, of Dillon, S. C.; W. B. Williamson, of Asheville; Alan T. Bowler, of Raleigh; C. S. Morrison, of Asheville; Judge A. W. Graham, of Oxford; T. C. Coxe, of Asheville; A. H. Boyden, of Salisbury; W. A. Blue, of Aberdeen; Fred N. Tate, of High Point, president of the Continental Furniture Co.; A. C. Avery, of Morganton; James Kyle, of Goldsboro; W. A. Guthrie of Durham; General J. S. Carr, of Durham; J. E. Latham, of Greensboro; Henry F. Welch, president of William M. Bird Company, Charleston, S. C.; E. C. Borden, of Goldsboro; W. D. Pruden, of Edenton; J. B. Ramsey, Rocky Mount; Thomas M. Rose, of Hamlet; A. S. Manning, of Columbia, S. C., A. W. McAlister, president of the Southern Life and Trust Company, Greensboro, and the Norfolk Southern railroad, the Aberdeen & Rockfish railroad, the Durham Chamber of Commerce, the Monroe Chamber of Commerce, and the Sandhills Board of Trade, in addition to other leading trade organizations of the State already mentioned.

Baton Rouge, La., Oct. 6.—The names of the presidential electors chosen by the so-called "Lily White" wing of the Republican party will be placed on the official ballot in Louisiana in the November election. The state election contest board tonight ruled against the Republican faction which includes negro members.
